

MANIAC AMUCK WITH KNIFE AMONG CHILDREN

REPORT CURTIS INDICTED TODAY FOR LINDY HOAX

Grand Jury Is In Session Two Hours: Report Next Saturday

Flemington, N. J., May 26—(AP)—The Hunterdon county grand jury considered the case of John Hughes Curtis, confessed hoaxter of the Lindbergh case, for two hours and five minutes today and when it adjourned there were unofficial reports that an indictment had been voted.

While Curtis sat in his solitary cell in the jail adjoining the courthouse, the grand jury heard three witnesses—police officials who have been active in the kidnapping investigation—tell of the confessed hoaxter's story of his alleged negotiations with the kidnappers and the effect they had on the actual search for the kidnaper-murderers of the Lindbergh baby.

Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck also presented to the grand jury documentary evidence against Curtis, including the confession of his hoax that Curtis typed in the emergency police station at the Lindbergh home.

Proceedings Secret
Although there were unofficial reports that an indictment had been voted, officials declined to discuss anything that transpired in the secrecy of the grand jury room. Before the session opened Prosecutor Hauck reiterated a previous statement that an indictment, if any was voted, would not be handed up until Saturday morning.

Captain J. J. Lamb, of the New Jersey state police, who has been active in the kidnapping investigation of the Lindbergh case, was called by Prosecutor Hauck as his first witness. Lamb was one of the first state police officials to arrive at the Lindbergh home in the Soudland Hills the night of March 1, the night the child was stolen.

Captain Lamb remained before the jury thirty minutes and fairly ran down the stairs leading to a driveway where his automobile was parked.

The next witnesses following Capt. Lamb were Inspector Harry Walsh of the Jersey City Police Department, and Lieut. Walker Keaton of the New Jersey State Police, whose questioning of Curtis ended with the boat builder typing the confession of his hoax in the state police station in the Lindbergh garage.

Trial In July
Each of these police officials spent about twenty minutes before the grand jury. Neither could discuss the case as they left for the Lindbergh home.

Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trechard will be at Flemington Saturday to receive the indictment. If one was voted by the grand jury, W. C. Pender, attorney for the Norfolk boat builder, has said there was little doubt his client would be indicted.

The charge of obstructing justice and spreading false information, Mr. Pender said the trial would not be held until July at the earliest because "considerable time will be required to investigate the various ramifications of the case."

Short Seller Is Denied Privilege

New York, May 26—(AP)—The New York Stock Exchange took its most drastic action today against a member for bear activity thus far in the 3 year decline.

Daniel Manning McKoon, a private floor trader, was suspended for one year, under provisions of the constitution forbidding the offering of stock in a manner designed to demoralize the market. The announcement said that although McKoon's offers "were not accepted and did not cause the decline in prices," he was found guilty of the charges by the Governing Committee.

The Exchange began an exhaustive check up on short sellers a year ago, and from time to time has tightened up its regulations of that practice, but McKoon was the first seller to be suspended.

McKoon declined to comment on the action of the Governing Committee, referring all inquiries to the Stock Exchange. He has been regarded as a fairly active trader, although not identified with any particular stocks. Exchange officials declined to disclose what stocks he had attempted to sell in the manner which prompted their action.

Pershing Attacks Prohibition Laws

Paris, May 26—(AP)—General John J. Pershing declared today that prohibition in the United States is the basis of racketeering and that it never would have been adopted if the masses of the people had voted on it.

The General made these assertions in a pungently-phrased speech before the American Club at a luncheon given in his honor last night.

Vigorously attacking what he described as conditions of lawlessness in the United States, the general blamed them on the lawlessness and apathy of the American people themselves.

And what did the customer—a tourist—do but hand him his right wooden leg?

He got the gas, and said he'd be back later to reclaim his leg.

Joliet, Ill., May 26—(AP)—Two convicts who cooked alcohol for their fellow prisoners in Stateville penitentiary got burned for their trouble.

Their miniature still, fashioned out of copper utensils and rubber hose picked up in the commissary department of the state building blew up in their cell and brought guards running.

The guards found Edward Uelson and Roy Knight, robbers sentenced from Cook county, trying to put out the flames and nursing burns about the hands and face.

The fire was put out and the still was, too, while Uelson and Knight went to the penitentiary hospital for a day before entering into solitary confinement tomorrow.

The marchers carried placards demanding the return of beer and in the file were floats bearing empty beer kegs reminiscent of the pre-prohibition days when this city was the home of large breweries noted in the middle west for their product.

Legion participation in the parade drew the censure of Rev. E. E. Koster, Pastor of the Congregational church, and the Legion Post in special meeting yesterday formally protested the censure as unwarranted.

'GENEROSITY OF FRIENDS', MAYOR WALKER EXPLAINS

Has Received "Countless Kindnesses" He Tells Atty.

New York, May 26—(AP)—Mayor James J. Walker charged on the stand today that his being called a witness before the Hofstadter legislative committee was in fact merely "an examination before trial" and an prelude to requesting the Governor to remove him from office.

"It begins to look as if someone were after my life," he asserted. Samuel Seabury, chief counsel of the committee, who is examining the Mayor as to his administration of the city, replied that the Mayor's outburst was nothing but "a cheap political stump speech."

Among the spectators today was J. Allan Smith, business agent who bought a $10,000 letter of credit for the Mayor in 1927. Mayor Walker testified yesterday that he never heard of Smith and that the letter of credit was paid for by himself and members of the party.

McKeon Present
Another present was John J. McKeon, who according to testimony by earlier witnesses, delivered $26,000 in bonds to the Mayor from J. A. Sisto, a banker.

The Mayor was not asked about this transaction in his first day on the stand.

"Have you been the beneficiary of any funds or accounts since you've been Mayor?" Seabury asked today, pursuing his questioning about the block account.

"I've had countless kindnesses," Walker replied. As Seabury pressed him for a more direct answer, he added:

"Not that I remember."

Seabury asked the Mayor if, in response to a subpoena, he had produced "any records" for the committee.

"Most of the records asked for never existed," Walker replied.

"There are no records of any financial transactions with Fagel, J. Allan Smith, Sisto or O'Neill because I never had any financial transactions with them."

$10,000 'Generosity'
Walker said he had $10,000 "evidence of additional generosity," in a bank that was absorbed by the Bank of Manhattan.

He said it was profit on an investment made on his behalf, by Esmond O'Brien, but did not remember what the stock was. O'Brien had bought for him that gave him the $10,000 profit.

Whatever records there are of his financial transactions, Walker said, are check stubs in his law office. He promised to send for them.

Seabury then turned the questioning again to the Mayor's transactions with Sisto, whom Walker met, the latter testified, at Atlantic City in 1929. He was told, the Mayor said, that Sisto was heavily interested in a Couden oil stock pool, and that he himself participated in the pool to the extent of $26,000 without putting up any money.

He took his profits—the $26,000—in bonds, he testified which were brought to him by McKeon and turned them over to Mrs. Walker, who still has them.

Seabury then read from the record a passage indicating McKeon had testified he gave the bonds to Walker in a taxicab, which the Mayor denied.

Nickel Fare Jingles
The nickel fare, dear to the hearts of New York straphangers, has jingled into the till.

Both brought it up right at the start of yesterday's hearing. The Mayor accused the "traction interests" of spreading propaganda that a five cent fare was not high enough and said Seabury had worked for those interests.

Seabury, denying this as a "red herring," sought to show that a bus company for which Mayor Walker signed a widespread franchise had proposed a zoning system which would make fares high—five cents, Walker insisted the proposed fare was five cents.

The bus company was the Equitable Coach Company, which has formed one of the chief points of attack on the Mayor. Making what its foes called an attempt to dominate the New York transit situation, involving untold millions of dollars, the company secured a tri-borough franchise in 1927.

The Mayor signed the franchise but the company never got into operation. Seabury charged it was a "financial paralytic." Walker replied the reason why it could not get financial backing was that the traction interests closed the door to it by propaganda that it couldn't make enough money on a nickel fare.

From backers of the Equitable, Seabury elicited information that State Senator John J. Hastings, close friend of the Mayor, got paid for being their "political contact man."

At the Clarence Hammer farm four miles southeast of Polo a garage was blown fifty feet into the hog yard, at the Andrew Trump farm nearby a machine shed and trees were blown down; and at the Flyd Coffman farm near Stratford a machine shed, fences and trees were razed. ONE CLEVELAND GIRL IS KILLED: TWO INJURED

Plunged Into Group Of Children Without Any Warning

Cleveland, May 26—(AP)—A knife-wielder who called himself "Mystery Jake," turned on a crowd of school children today, stabbed one girl to death and perhaps fatally injured two more.

He was captured a few moments later by Patrolman Charles A. Mischely, on school traffic duty nearby, as hundreds of persons on their way to work gathered and threatened mob action.

The man, who coherently muttered that he "had a call to kill millions," and "called on the Patrolman to 'kill me, kill me, I have not killed enough.'"

The dead girl was Elaine Macklin, 8. The critically injured were Lena De Sand 12, and Rose Marie Parker, 8. They were on their way to St. Cecilia's school when the attack occurred.

Without Warning
The man, who gave his name as Jake Gordon, 40, suddenly plunged into a group of children, brandishing a knife, and without a warning slashed the throat of the girl he turned wildly on the other two Parker girls, witnesses said. Then girls and cut them about the throat.

Police said the man talked incessantly and boasted that he was "Mystery Jake" with some illusion that he was to kill children. He told them he had not spoken to anyone for a year and a half.

Gordon was released two and a half years ago from the Newburg State Hospital for the insane, according to Israel Vangar, with whom he lived.

No Court Record
At the hospital, however, it was reported he was never a patient there. No record was found of him in Probate Court.

The attacker left his room in a particularly good frame of mind this morning, Vangar said. "He laughed and joked with me. He has been a little moody lately but otherwise he seemed to be perfectly normal," Vangar said.

Gordon was neither hat nor coat. He first went to a barber shop, where he joked with the proprietor and customers, and then went about his grumble "mission."

He said he had been "fighting that order to kill children for two years. This morning I couldn't resist it any longer. So I killed them—but I didn't kill enough."

Hospital and police officials did not know the cause of the leap, nor where Swallen lived. The man did not disclose his reason up to this morning.

A large number of contractors submitted bids when the committee convened this morning and the indications were that the bidding would be very close. Approximately two miles of cement in the village and west to eventually connect with state highway, route 69, are to be constructed out of the county's share of the fuel tax refund this summer.

Supervisor Frank Kugler and Highway Commissioner A. B. Clatworthy of Harmon were in attendance at the opening of the several bids. The committee expected to award the bid before adjourning this afternoon.

THREE INJURED IN ACCIDENT ON STATE ROUTE 26

Asst. Supt. of Medusa Cement Plant One Of The Victims

Harry J. Kennedy, Assistant Superintendent at the Medusa cement plant, and John and Tony Kramer, brothers, residing east of the city on the Stoney Point road, narrowly escaped being instantly killed last night about 10 o'clock, when Kennedy's Dodge coupe turned over several times on the cement paving on state highway route 26 near the Plum Hollow golf course.

The car skidded a distance of about 100 feet, it was reported and the three men were thrown through the top. The car was practically demolished.

Tony Kramer was said to have been the most severely injured, having sustained serious internal injuries and a severe wound in the back.

Kennedy was reported to have suffered a fractured collar bone and all three men were cut and bruised about the head and body. An ambulance was summoned to the scene of the wreck, but the injured occupants had been removed to the hospital in other cars. The wrecked machine was hauled to a local garage.

Reports this morning were to the effect that Tony Kramer's injuries were considered of a serious nature. His brother John Kramer left the hospital this morning about 5 o'clock and Kennedy was still detained.

REPUBLICANS TO MEET TOMORROW FOR CONVENTION

Ex-Governor Small's Address Will Be Broadcast

Springfield, Ill., May 26—(AP)—Talking harmony and predicting victory at the November election, Republican leaders began gathering in Springfield today for the G. O. P. state convention to be held Friday in the State Arsenal.

The convention is scheduled to begin at 10 A. M., but probably will not be started on time, as many of the Chicago delegates will not arrive until about an hour and a half later.

Many conferences will be held in the hotels tonight with Len Small, nominee for a third term; Col. Frank L. Smith, temporary chairman of the convention; Judge Franklin J. Stranksy, temporary secretary of the convention and chairman of the state committee; and other chiefs.

The chief thing to be discussed is the tentative draft of the platform, particularly the plank on prohibition.

Platform To Be Wet?
The platform likely will be wet and may go so far as to advocate repeal of the prohibition laws, in accordance with the 1930 referendum of this state. During the campaign Gov. Small announced he would abide by the wishes of the people.

Former Mayor William Hale Thompson, Chicago, will lead a large delegation, while Senator O. P. Gieson, nominee for re-election, also is to be here and address the convention. Some of the defeated candidates for governor also will be on the platform.

Besides adopting a platform, the convention will select eleven delegates-at-large to the national convention in June, pick three nominees for Trustee of the University of Illinois and choose presidential electors. The honors will likely be distributed among all factions in the party in the interests of harmony.

Record Convention
This promises to be a record convention, with 2,839 delegates and many other leaders attending. There will be 1,003 delegates from Cook county and 1,836 from downstate. Friends of Governor Small will be in control, but they probably will extend the olive branch to friends of the defeated candidates.

The first business of the convention will be the delivery of the keynote address by Temporary Chairman Smith. Other speeches will follow while the various committees are at work.

The two chief absentees will be Governor Louis F. Emmerson, who is being treated for foot trouble in Rochester, Minn., and David E. Shanahan, Speaker of the House of Representatives, who is recovering from an illness.

BENTON WOMAN, AGED MOTHER IN CUSTODY TODAY
Accused of Poisoning Former's Husband: Stepson Is Ill

London, Ill., May 26—(AP)—Mrs. George Trout, 71-year-old mother of Mrs. Don Seibert, was jailed last night, pending investigation in the mysterious death of the latter's second husband Louis Seibert. Mrs. Seibert had been taken into custody 24 hours earlier.

Seibert was apparently in excellent health until a few days before his death, April 16. He suffered severe pains in his stomach, relatives said. When he died his body turned a greenish-yellow and an autopsy was ordered which revealed poison in the stomach in sufficient quantity to cause his death.

The women deny any connection with the case. The aged woman denies she is the mother of Mrs. Seibert and contends the latter is only her adopted daughter, Mrs. Seibert, on the other hand, claims Mrs. Trout is her real mother.

But she disowns me at times, especially when she is mad at me," Authorities also are investigating the illness of Mrs. Seibert's 12-year-old stepson and the death of her first husband, Fred Liddell.

The child, officers said, has developed symptoms which caused the death of Seibert.

It is alleged the woman's first husband complained of pains in his stomach before he died in 1922.

Drys Are After Chicago Hotel Men

Chicago, May 26—(AP)—The organized dries of Illinois are preparing a protest against discrimination by Chicago hotels.
They charge that a long standing rule of the Chicago Hotel Men's Association was suspended to permit the Illinois Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform to set up membership enrollment booths in hotel lobbies, while the same privilege was denied dry workers.
J. K. Blatchford, secretary of the hotel men, acknowledged that the women's anti-prohibition group had been accorded the privilege but that the hotel lobby barring the use of hotel lobbies by solicitors was enforced with regard to dry organizations. He said the hotel men recently voted against prohibition.
The Illinois conference of organizations supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, comprising some 30 dry societies, and headed by Arthur Barnhart, Chicago attorney, has begun preparation of a protest to be distributed throughout the nation of mailing lists of the various dry organizations.

With Harold Lloyd and Al Jolson both in the same picture, you'd expect it to be a comedy, and you'd be wrong. For Ray Impellitteri, center, constitutes a serious menace to the current crop of heavyweight fighters. He is 6 feet 7 1/2 inches tall, weighs 272 pounds, has had seven professional fights and has won all by knockouts. Impellitteri called on Jolson left, singer of mammy songs, and Lloyd right, maker of movie laughs, at their Hollywood studio.

Rays of the Moon Harnessed for First Time

H. L. Doherty Speaks Over Beam to His Fraternity Organization—New Development Great Aid to Scientists

NEW YORK—Speaking for the first time over the cold ray of a harnessed moonbeam, no thicker than an ordinary lead pencil, and having the energy of only two thousandth of a watt, science's latest achievement, Henry L. Doherty, Founder and President of the Cities Service Company, recently, from his office on the 67th floor of the new Sixty Wall Tower Building, in lower Manhattan, sent a message of greeting via the National Broadcasting Company's network to the members of the Doherty Men's Fraternity, located in almost every city and hamlet throughout the United States and to the officers and men in the crews of the company's vessels plying the seven seas.

Over the same moonbeams he blew a whistle which tripped a relay, causing the floodlights to shine on the new building.

Moonbeams Put to Work
For many years scientists have been experimenting, trying to find some way to utilize the light beams of the moon but not until the instruments developed by L. W. Chubb, Director of Research, Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, at the laboratories at East Pittsburgh and used for the first time in the demonstration by Dr. Phillips Thomas, Research Engineer, and K. A. Ohlinger, Optical Expert of the Westinghouse organization, that the cold rays of the moon were controlled and put to work.

To carry out this demonstration, Dr. Thomas placed his moonbeam condenser on a balcony on the 67th story of the new building. The moon was in its first quarter, in the south, a little west, just over Governor's Island at about 55 degrees above the horizon.

The light from the moon, more than 230,000 miles away, was gathered with a lens 14 inches in diameter and focused through a 21 inch cone to a tilted vibrating galvanometer mirror 1/4 inch in diameter which, in turn, projected a moonbeam 1/4 inch in length about the size of an ordinary lead pencil and caused it to dance on the cathode of a photo-tube or "Electric Eye." When Mr. Doherty spoke, his voice vibrated the moonbeam through the amplifier and to the radio listeners throughout the world.

When he blew the whistle, to turn on the floodlighting system installed by the Westinghouse engineers, a sound-sensitive relay responded to the signal and tripped the switch, causing the tower of the building to be illuminated.

The occasion for the demonstration was Mr. Doherty's sixty-second birthday, the opening of the Company's new building and also the opening of the March-of-Progress Exposition which is being held on the ground floor of the new structure.

With Mr. Doherty, during the demonstration, were Mrs. Doherty, Miss Helen Lee Doherty, W. Alton Jones, Vice President, Cities Service Company, M. H. Aylesworth, President R. K. O. and National Broadcasting Company and Dr. Thomas and Mr. Ohlinger while more than 2,000 employees were listening to the ceremony via radio in various offices throughout the building.

Useful in Bacteria Menageries
In speaking of the possible uses of controlled moonlight, Dr. Thomas said, "The cold rays of the moon, although they are strong enough to operate a photo-electric cell, could not be expected to generate much energy but now that we have for the first time been able to control these beams, no doubt research engineers and especially curators of bacteria menageries who are studying the effect of moonlight on plant growth, hygiene and medicine will soon find many uses for them."

Thousands of visitors streamed through this latest addition to New York's world famous skyline to inspect the building. The day's festivities closed with the turning on of the floodlighting system by a moonbeam.

Sixty Wall Tower Building is the third largest office building in the world. It is 67 stories high and covers an area of 32,000 square feet. It will have a population of 8,000 people. It has been estimated that with the 23 elevators and five pairs of reversible escalators, in any emergency, the building could be emptied in 35 minutes.

Commission Studies Poverty in Old Age

Chicago, May 26—(AP)—The Illinois commission for the study of poverty and dependency, a body of 25 members appointed by Governor Louis L. Emmerson, will hold its first public hearing in Peoria on June 2. It is planned to hold other hearings in various cities throughout the state.

The commission, under the chairmanship of W. L. McMillen, has been making a state-wide investigation of the condition and various relief methods in carrying for the aged poor. A census is being made of the county almshouses and private homes for the aged, and in representative communities a house-to-house canvass has been undertaken.

A resume of this information will be presented to the Governor and legislature with the commission's recommendations.

"Bonus Brigade" Crossing Indiana
Washington, Indiana, May 26—(AP)—The "Bonus Brigade" today resumed its advance on Washington, moving out of here in twenty-five Indiana National Guard motor trucks.

Lieut. Col. H. H. Stillwell, in charge of the truck convoy, doubted that the "brigade" would reach the Ohio state line before tomorrow. Governor George White has said he will provide transportation across Ohio for the 300 World War veterans who are moving on to ask cash payment of their adjusted service certificates.

Lieut. Col. Stillwell fixed a tentative schedule which called for an overnight stop tonight at North Vernon, Ind. The remaining forty miles from North Vernon to the Ohio line will be covered tomorrow, Stillwell said.

Vote On 16-To-1 Will Be Demanded
Washington, May 26—(AP)—Senator Wheeler (D. Mont.) served notice on the Senate today he would demand a vote before Congress adjourns on his bill for the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 with gold.

He urged his bill during debate on an amendment to the tax bill to exclude silverware from a 10 per cent jewelry tax. That amendment lost, 43 to 30.

Sensors from the silver producing state led by Senator Thomas (R. Idaho), said the tax would further depress silver and would "drive a nail in the coffin of silver."

EARLY END FOR STATE'S CASE IN PEORIA IS SEEN

Many Motions Made By Defense In Kidnap Trial Denied

Peoria, Ill., May 26—(AP)—Conversations between Attorney Joseph Pursfull and James Betson, as recorded by police with the aid of a hidden telephonic device, were allowed into evidence in the Parker kidnapping trial today by Judge Henry Ingram.

Pursfull and Betson, contractor and politician, are charged with being co-conspirators for the band that kidnaped Dr. James W. Parker, wealthy Peoria physician.

Police arrested the two men several days before the physician was returned home. They were taken to a house on the edge of Peoria. Here, the trap was set up and the conversation between the men recorded.

The prosecution expected to enter this conversation into evidence with the testimony of agents of the "Secret Six" of the Chicago Association of Commerce. The details of the trap were outlined for the jurors by Lester Pratt, an investigator in the office of his brother, the State's Attorney, and William Lyons, secretary to the Police Chief.

Motions Denied
Judge Ingram also denied the motion of separate trial for Pursfull and Betson.

The interest in the Parker trial was greatly enhanced with the indictment of these two men, both well known in Peoria political and civic life. A crowded courtroom has heard each day's proceedings.

On trial with Pursfull and Betson are eight other men and one woman, indictment against a second woman was nolle prossed.

Attorneys George Springer and Edward Hayes counsel for Pursfull and Betson, entered into the record today a statement of the evidence they will offer to show that their clients were beaten and forced to make confessions.

The presentation of evidence has been delayed for several days over out-of-jury hearings on the admission of statements of various defendants. With the dictaphone conversation settled, an early end was expected of the state's case, probably by tomorrow.

Leader Of Cuban Rebels In Refuge
Havana, May 26—(AP)—General Mario G. Menocal, American-educated revolutionary leader who foiled attempts to imprison him in connection with a alleged new revolt plot by taking refuge in the Brazilian Embassy, will not be permitted voluntary exile in the United States if the Cuban government can prevent it.

Following reports yesterday that General Menocal might try to slip out of Cuba under a Brazilian passport, Secretary of State Octavio Averhoff declared the Cuban government had no intention of permitting him to thwart imprisonment in this or any other manner.

The General was recently released from prison after having been captured at the head of an expeditionary force in Pinar del Rio province, but was alleged to be one of the chief conspirators in a campaign of terrorism intended to open the way for a fresh revolution.

Menocal is a Cornell University graduate, and served two terms as President of Cuba, 1913-1921. He is said to be immensely wealthy, the chief source of his wealth being sugar.

Seek Agreement To Vote On Farm Bill
Washington, May 26—(AP)—Senate leaders were negotiating today for an agreement to vote before adjournment of Congress on the McNary omnibus farm relief bill.

Sensor Nye (R. N. D.) sought to obtain unanimous consent in the Senate today for consideration of farm legislation after passage of the tax bill, but withdrew the request to await the outcome of pending negotiations.

Chairman McNary of the Agriculture committee indicated that some agreement probably would be reached for a vote on his bill proposing the equalization fee, the export debenture, and the allotment plan sought by farm leaders.

The address of Ex-Gov. Small before the state convention at Springfield tomorrow will be broadcast between 1:15 and 1:45 Central Standard time over WLS.

NOCTURNE

In the dark house
By the dark stream,
There is no sound,
There is no gleam
The sky is darker
Than the night
The house is darker
Than the sky
There is no sound
There is no light
Only the north wind
Hurrying by,
And tearing at
A broken shutter,
And playing on
A rusted gutter
Only a blackness
In a black dream—

Miss Fishel Won Prize In Contest

"The Grand Army of the Republic," was the subject for the essay chosen by the Illinois Department Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil for pupils of the eighth grades in cities where there are Tents of Daughters of Union Veterans. This is an excellent way in which to keep before the eyes of the younger generation the valor and sacrifice of the members of the Grand Army. The contest closed March 1st.

Mrs. Frank Hettinger, president of the Dixon Tent, No. 81, has received a letter in which she is advised that Miss Frances Fishel of Dixon has been awarded the third prize in the contest, a gold medal. The first prize of $50 was awarded to Jeanne O'Callaghan of Joliet; the second to Julian Hamilton, Rockford, who won $25; and the third prize, a gold medal, goes to Miss Fishel of Dixon, a student in the E. C. Smith school, Miss Barton, teacher.

Master George Dorland Ten Years Old

Master George Dorland, son of Mrs. Zetta Dorland of this city was ten years old Wednesday and invited ten young friends to enjoy luncheon with him yesterday, at home. Miss Florence Mason, George's teacher, was present, and enjoyed the occasion with the youngsters as much as they did.

Luncheon was served in several courses. Decorations were in green and yellow, favors of pretty green holding the bon bons at each plate, green tapers and spring flowers completing the pretty effect. Ice cream was served as the last course with individual birthday cakes holding a lighted taper of green in green holders. George received many nice gifts from his young friends with best wishes for happy returns of the day, and then after several games the youngsters returned to the afternoon session of school.

Commencement for Harmon Schools on Tuesday Evening

Commencement exercises for the Harmon Public School and vicinity marked the close of the year's work on Tuesday May 24. A large audience of parents and friends gathered in the high school for the occasion. Thirty-two graduates received diplomas.

B. J. Frazer, principal of the Dixon High School, was the speaker for the evening and gave a very interesting address on "The Relation of Education to Environment." Mr. Frazer stressed the idea that young people today face problems which are far more complicated than problems ever were before and they will be able to solve these only in proportion to the development of their individual character. In order to build this character which will stand the stress of complex civilization, youth needs the help and leadership of the best men and women in the community, whether they be in the home, school of church. Character of young people today should have the sterling qualities of life rather than the material things of life.

Supt. L. W. Miller presented the diplomas in a very pleasing manner after the following program had been given:

A LESSON FROM 1929.

Almost every day something happens to give us a clearer vision of the sort of civilization that we had in this country before the 1929 crash.

Most recent were the tales about easy money in Wall Street, told to the Senate committee in Washington by a series of witnesses.

These stories make a strange, rather surprising picture. The Raskob pool, it seems, cleaned up $5,000,000 in a week. A group of other traders organized by a free-lance put through an operation that netted the free-lance a million in five weeks, although he had not put up any of his own money. Another company whose stock was being manipulated by a big pool managed to pay out dividends of $1,500,000 on net profits of $1,000,000.

And so it went. High finance seems to have been just a little bit better, in those gay days, than most of us ever realized. Now that it is too late, we are learning things.

We are learning, for instance, that our famous prosperity had a hectic, unhealthy tingle to it. It was too turbulent, too febrile; it made us lose sight of the fact that what goes up is apt to come down, sooner or later—with a bang.

It will be a good thing if we can keep all of that in mind. For we are very apt, these days, to long wistfully for a return of the bright days of 1928 and 1929, to look back on the prosperity of those years as something to which we must return just as soon as we have found out how to clamber out of this depression; and the days of easy money are not, really, worth returning to.

For those days paved the way for these days in which we are suffering now. The time when a group of clever market manipulators could knock off $5,000,000 in a week, the time when a trader could clear a million without investing a cent of his own, were directly responsible for the time of 8,000,000 unemployed.

When we look ahead to prosperity, let's look ahead to a saner kind; a kind that won't strew as much easy money about Wall Street, but that will be a little bit more enduring.

LET'S FACE THE FACTS.

From the Welfare Council of New York comes word that for the first time in history, the family welfare societies of that city are being compelled by lack of funds to turn away destitute families that are coming to them for help. Some of these societies have been on the job for more than 50 years.

This bit of news, of course, is not repeated with the idea of disseminating pessimism. The country has quite enough of that already. But the fact is worth looking at, for it indicates that private charity has—in some localities—already extended itself to the very limit without being able to do all the work that there is for it to do.

Considering this fact, and considering also the fact that New York's problem is not much different from the problems of other cities, one is impelled to wonder if the federal treasury will not eventually have to be tapped in the battle with unemployment and poverty.

AMELIA'S FLIGHT.

Amelia Earhart seems to have made good in a very big way on her claim to the honor of being the first woman to fly the Atlantic.

It is quite a while since she first gained fame by crossing the sea in a ship flown by the late Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon. But that achievement was probably never quite as satisfying as it might have been. After all, she had been a passenger. The stunt took courage, but did not stamp her as a great flyer.

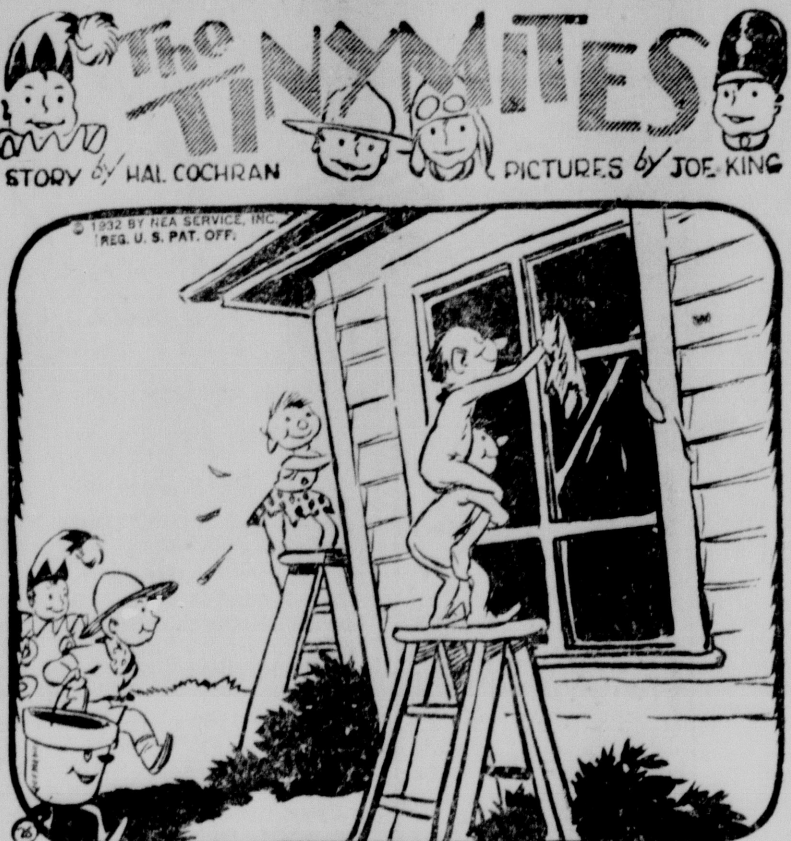

Now, however, the triumph is complete. Utterly alone, she has conquered the Atlantic, hanging up a record that no other woman flyer hardly any men have yet equaled. The flight testifies abundantly to her capacity as an aviator.

If we, as a nation, continue our present outworn and discredited policy of imposing higher tariff duties, it will mean that we must be satisfied with a market of 120,000,000 people rather than a world market of 2,000,000,000 people.—Albert D. Hutzler of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

The anvil chorus can always get complete harmony when declaring "There are too darn many laws now." But let these same critics run up against a situation that is not clearly covered in existing statutes, then hear the shout "There ought to be a law!"—Grant Hinkle, secretary of state, state of Washington.

Mankind, in spite of plentiful evidence to the contrary, is endowed with reasoning powers. There are hopeful signs that he is using the powers to build co-operatively amid the present chaos.—Feliz Morley, economist.

So long as people are allowed to think what they like they are bound to think something so hard that they will be eager to kill anyone who thinks something else.—G. K. Chesterton, essayist.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Scrub-a-dubs had sung their song and Scouty said, "Well I guess I was wrong. I did not think that you could sing, but you have done well."

"You've told us of the work you do, in sing-song, and now that you are through, I wonder is there anything else that you wish to tell."

"Well, yes!" one little Scrub-a-dub replied. And then he stopped and sadly sighed. "Our own house must be spick and span. The cleaning's up to us."

"You see, the place in which we live, a good impression ought to give. We do not like to work at home, but there is no use to make a fuss."

"We will wash the windows till they shine. Then we can see right through them fine. We will scrub the floors and dust the walls Oh, it won't take so long."

"You Tynmites can watch us now and, very soon, we will show you how to make things look refreshing, while we sing a little song."

The bucket then cried out, "I'll get filled with water. Gee! I hope none is spilled." It scampered off and came right back. And then it cried, "Let's start."

"Come, mep, just dip your head in me and scrub as hard as hard can be. If we're to finish up this job we all must do our part."

The Scrub-a-dubs worked while they sang. Real clearly their loud voices rang. "Four little Scrub-a-dubs are we. Our job's to make things bright."

"We do the best that we can do. Then everything looks just like new. We're going to finish our own house; if it takes us all night."

Soon Scouty, as he watched the bunch, cried out, "I have a happy hunch, I'd hate to see you Scrub-a-dubs work on, throughout the night."

"We'll gladly lend a helping hand," One Scrub-a-dub said. "Say, that is grand." And so the Tynmites turned in and worked with all their might.

(The Tynmites have a merry chase in the next story.)

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MUCH OF THE AMBITION OF JACOB WAS INHERITED BY JOSEPH — A YOUNGER SON AMONG JEALOUS AND FORCEFUL BROTHERS.

By WILLIAM E. GILROY

Much of the ambition of Jacob was inherited by Joseph — a younger son among jealous and forceful brothers. The ambition that moved Joseph did not find such crooked and devious ways as his father's ambition had found, but it created in Joseph a lack of proper sensitiveness about the feelings of others, and a lack of reticence concerning his attitude toward the world and what he anticipated that the world would do for him.

The man who lives too exclusively in a world that centers about himself is not apt to be liked either by those of his own household or by those of his immediate environment. We do not like the man who talks too much about himself, whose conversation suggests that he is a child of preference, and revolves around all that the world is going to do for himself and what he is going to do for the world.

Even in religion there is a danger that our familiarity with the Almighty and our confidence in his favor may be more a matter of vanity and ambition than of humility and true faith.

Joseph, as a matter of fact, was a very good and very competent man. He was a child of fortune in more ways than one. But in the story of the youth as he grows up among his older brethren, talking too freely about himself and making too much of his dreams, there is something that is not altogether attractive. There were lessons that Joseph had to earn in adversity, and his character came to its true greatness through a long experience of suffering and trial — experiences through which, also, his brethren were to learn much and to find a nobler character.

If, however, the dreamer may be unwise and voluble in too freely exploiting his dreams, there is no warrant for hating the dreamer. The attitudes of Joseph's brethren were wrong. They allowed what might have been a just cause for amusement, and for passing resentment, to develop in them a studied and intense hatred awaiting only its opportunity for expression and action.

After all, our sympathies must be with the dreamer, for how could the world go on without him and without his dreams? The tendency of the world is not to make too much but rather too little of its dreamers.

The psychologists today tell us that our dream life has largely to do with our suppressed desires, and they make the suppressed desires of this dream life move almost wholly in the world of dark and ignoble things.

Why should not the suppressed hopes and aspirations and longings of men for higher and better things affect their dream life quite as much as the suppressed desires of evil? At any rate we can certainly think of the day dreams, if not of the night dreams of men, as linked with the conception of better lives and a better world.

In the ambition of Joseph there was at least nothing ignoble. At a later time Paul referred to his own great Christian career as beginning in obedience to a heavenly vision. In Joseph there was that same spirit of obedience—the yielding of his life to higher and to better things.

It is not sufficient alone to dream, even of our own aggrandizement and responsibility. It is only as the dream touches our wills and makes us responsible to its ideal, and its appeal, that the dream of today becomes the reality of a better tomorrow.

The Straits: Bottleneck For Black Sea Trade

Washington, D. C.—"The Straits"—the Dardanelles and Bosphorus—which form the water outlet from the Black Sea to the Mediterranean, have been experiencing a growth in traffic in marked contrast to the decreases on many of the other leading waterways of the world. The annual report of the Straits Commission for 1931, recently made to the League of Nations, shows that since 1924, when trade began to pick up from the condition of War stagnation, there has been almost a three fold increase. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society tells of the Black Sea region and the economic changes that recent years have brought to it.

Busy Since Early Days

"The Dardanelles, the Sea of Marmara, and the Bosphorus, extending link by link between the Mediterranean and the Black Seas, have been a pulsing artery for trade since the time when history and mythology met," says the bulletin. "Jason and his Argonauts went through and sailed along the southern coast of the Black Sea in Greece's kindergarten days; and there are those who see in the Golden Fleece they sought a poetic allusion to the rich trade the Greeks found then and for many centuries later in the waters of the Euxine. Scythia, north of the Black Sea, sent grain through the Straits to the Greek city states, and later to Rome.

"As agriculture and industry have waxed and waned, as caravan routes have been shifted or have given way to railroads, and as political boundaries have been pushed back and forth in the countries around the Black Sea, the changes have been registered unerringly in the stream of traffic flowing through the Straits.

"Before the World War shiploads of grain moved out through the Straits from the mouth of the Danube, from Odessa, and from the Russian ports of the Sea of Azov. Tanker after tanker carried petroleum cargoes from Baku, at the east end of Black Sea, whither it flowed from Baku, through what was then one of the longest of the world's pipe lines. Shiploads of tobacco steamed from Samson, Turkish port on the south shore of the Black Sea; and from near-by Trebizond came thousands of Persian rugs. Mines on the Asia Minor coast and Russia's Donetz fields contributed cargoes of coal.

"Manufactured goods, cotton, and sugar went north from the Mediterranean, and through the Bosphorus steamed many a luxurious yacht to anchor off the Crimea, where the Tsar of Russia and his court spent the winter months.

War Killed Commerce
"During the World War this stream of traffic dried up; and for a number of years it was only a trickle. When it improved, there were many changes in its character. The breaking up of large estates in Rumania brought that country's wheat surplus down to a negligible figure, and it seems unlikely that the small farmers will soon produce important amounts of wheat for export. The Russian revolution put a stop to both grain and petroleum exports from Russia for almost a decade.

"Trebizond lost practically all its carpet and rug trade as a result of the World War. Thousands of laden camels used to come in annually from the southwest. Now the trade has largely been routed from Persia to Baghdad, with gasoline trucks replacing the lumbering camels. Local produce such as hazelnuts, walnuts, eggs and tobacco now form the bulk of the shipments from Trebizond for passage through the Straits.

"Samsun quickly recovered as the Black Sea's chief tobacco port. Railways are being extended into the interior, and shipments of various kinds are increasing. Farther east on the same coast, the Turkish coal mines have become more active in recent years and are contributing to the Black Sea's heightened trade. There are other rich mineral deposits in this mountainous southern coast of the Black Sea, including iron and copper, but they are now little developed. Some known mines furnished these indispensable metals to the ancients for thousands of years, and there is a legend that the hammer and the anvil were invented in this region.

Wheat Exports Increase
"Rumania, although of little recent importance in the grain trade, has added to the current traffic growth by increased shipments of petroleum and timber products. Within recent years Soviet grain exports have picked up greatly owing to the developments of large unit farming with modern machinery. Russia's steadily increased production of petroleum near Baku has also added greatly to Black Sea shipping.

"The waters and varied shores of the Black Sea afford a variety of products that, in addition to the outstanding commodities, make up the traffic that passes through the Straits. They range from attar of roses, anchovies and butter, caviar, cork, and hides, to licorice root, raisins, salt and wool.

"In the last year before the World War, 1913—the tonnage of merchant vessels moving through the Straits amounted to 14,000,000. Two years after the close of the War in 1920, less than 2,500,000 tons moved through. From that time on growth has been steady. In 1924 the tonnage was more than 7,000,000. In 1930 it passed the pre-war total and exceeded 17,500,000. The 1931 tonnage was 19,199,346.

"Following the World War the Powers insisted that the Straits be in effect internationalized. A ten-mile zone on each side was demilitarized, and it was provided that the waterways should be freely open, night and day, to merchant ships of all nations, and even to ships of war, with slight restrictions. Turkey accepted the arrangement and all other countries touching the Black Sea signed the agreement. A Straits Commission was set up in 1924. It supervises the operation of the agreement and makes an annual report.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

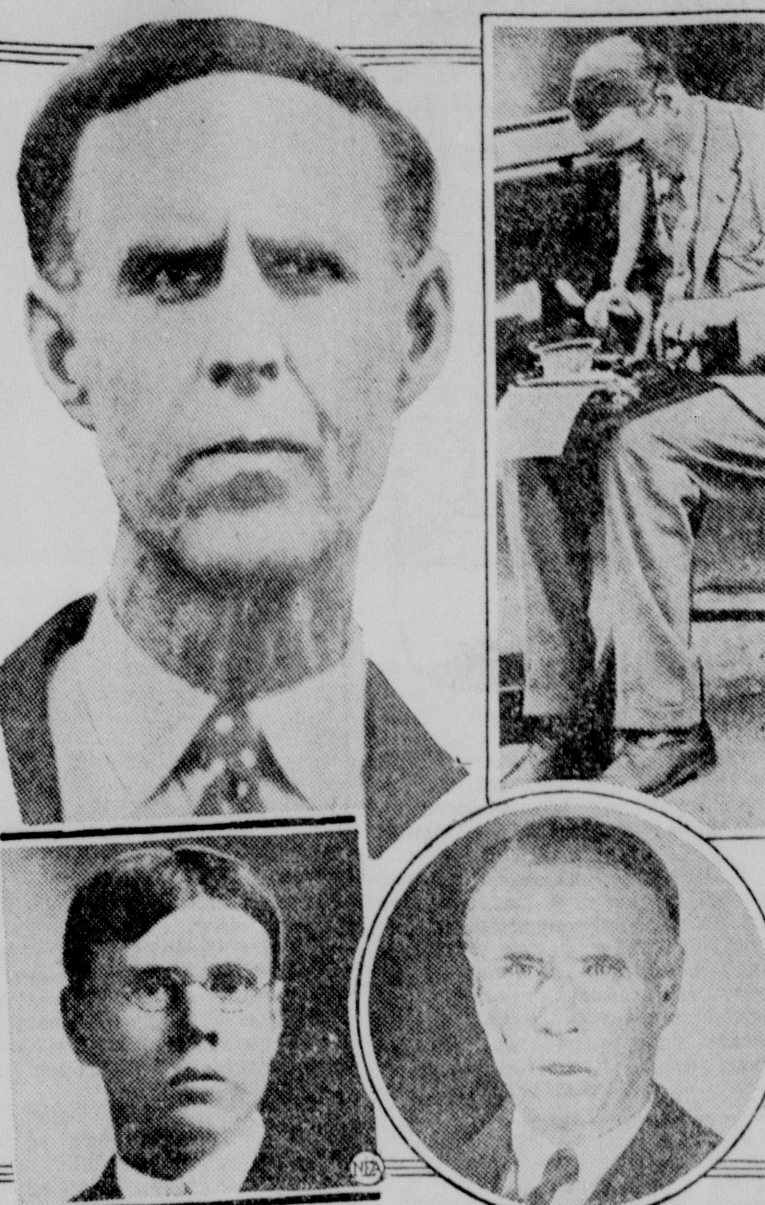

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name (Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label). Beware of imitations. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Brother Sinclair's Success Puzzles Jobless Fred Lewis

By NEA Service

Long Prairie, Minn.—Fred K. Lewis, who can't understand how his brother, Sinclair Lewis, ever made a success at writing, is about to join the ranks of the unemployed. Fred has been "second man" at the Long Prairie mill for the past four years. While Sinclair is kept busy banking royalties from his successful novel, Fred is toting around a blue slip that says his services will not be required after June 1.

Lewis, his wife and son, Robert, 18, plan to go back to Sauk Center, 30 miles away, the Lewis childhood home and locale of "Main Street," although there is no work to be found there.

Ten years the novelist's senior, to Fred the strangest thing about his brother is the fact that Sinclair, and "certainly Sinclair had no talent along those lines when he was a boy."

"We was just a common, ordinary small-town boy," recalls Fred. "He was very awkward. Aised from that, he knew more big words than any other boy in the neighborhood. 'When Claude, my other brother, er, who is now a surgeon in St. Cloud, Minn., and I went fishing at Hoboken Creek in Sauk Center, Sinclair would remain behind buried in a book. Father was exceedingly vexed.

Fred Lewis thinks that "Elmer Gantry" with its bitter attack on chaplainism in religion is "terrible."

"When Sinclair sent me a copy of that book and informed me he was about to take a trip to Europe I wrote him and told him it was a good thing," said Fred. "I told him if he stayed in this country he was liable to get lynched.

Something akin to boyish devilment gleams in the eyes of the Long Prairie miller when he talks of the contents of his "kid" brother's books. While he may not agree with their ideas, he has enjoyed reading them and recognized in them many of the characters of boyhood days in Sauk Center.

Fred declares that his brother's true name is Harry Sinclair Lewis. "He dropped the Harry part after he became a writer," Fred says. "Sinclair had a difficult time until he published 'Main Street.' But he doesn't have to worry now."

Prince Josef Coloredo-Mansfield, Austrian aristocrat, and Aladar Baron von Borovien, former secretary of Emperor Karl, French and British aristocrats have joined the party.

DIXON STATUE HERE STUDIED BY FOUNDATION

New Type Monument To Be Erected by Foundation

Dixon is given publicity in the following story sent out by the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation:

Dixon, Illinois, was included in the survey of all the other statues of Abraham Lincoln to find the proper type for the newest Lincoln bronze, which will be erected in July at Fort Wayne, Ind., by the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation.

After an exhaustive study of the statues by Franklin B. Mead, vice president of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company, and a well known student, it was decided to have Paul Manship, noted sculptor, create the first statue in the world depicting Lincoln as a youth.

A portrayal of a Lincoln, untroubled, erect, was created by Leonard Crunell for the city of Dixon, Lincoln was captain of a group of soldiers during the Black Hawk War. It is this phase of his life the sculptor chose to depict. The left hand of the statue rests on the hilt of a sword, which is girded around his waist. The right hand grips the wide belt. The monument is 10 feet high and is located on the site of the old Dixon Blockhouse.

The boy Lincoln for Fort Wayne shows him as a youth of 21 just before he left Indiana, where he had spent 14 years of his boyhood. The Manship statue represents him as a youth leaning against a stump in the simple costume of the frontier. He has a dog by his side, typifying his love for animals and symbolizes him as the rail splitter, and in his hand a book signifies inspirational thought. On each face of the pedestal is to be a group of heroic figures in medallion form, representing qualities for which the name Lincoln stands—patriotism, justice, fortitude and charity. The statue, which will stand on the plaza in front of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company building, will rise on its pedestal and pinth to a height of 21 feet.

TODAY IS THE WORLD WAR ANNIVERSARY

GERMAN DRIVE EXPECTED

On May 26, German shock troops were reported concentrating on the Chemin des Dames sector of the western front for their third major offensive of the year.

French forces opposing them had been reinforced but only to a slight extent, and Allied experts were fearful that the German storm troops might again break through, as they had against the British in their March offensive.

It was estimated that nearly 250,000 American troops could be thrown into the breach in case of necessity, and several divisions were being held in readiness. The railway station at Liege, Belgium, was destroyed in a raid by Allied planes. Twenty-six persons were reported killed there.

He suggests a 30-minute program each day from England, containing news of the homeland, entertainment and other features, would weld the empire into a strong unit.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name (Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label). Beware of imitations. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

SATURDAY WILL BE "POPPY DAY" TO AID VETERANS

V. F. W. Is In Charge Of Sale Of Flowers This Season

Saturday, May 28, has been decided upon as the official date for the annual sale of "Buddy Poppies" in Dixon. Mayor Dixon today issued a proclamation as follows:

"Saturday, May 28, has been set aside by the Veterans of Foreign Wars as Poppy Day, when the members of the organization ask the public to purchase Buddy Poppies, which are made by disabled veterans in hospitals and the proceeds are used for the support of widows and orphans of veterans.

"The cause for which the public is asked to purchase poppies is one which is very worthy and deserves encouragement and the people should patronize the sale as liberally as they are able to do as it is deserving of public support."

President Herbert Hoover recently commended the eleventh annual sale of Buddy Poppies in a letter to the Commander-in-Chief of the V. F. W., as follows:

"I warmly commend the annual Buddy Poppy campaign which is conducted under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States as a means of general civilian contribution in the relief work for disabled and needy veterans and their dependents. It not only gives employment to disabled veterans, but also it aids in the maintenance of a National Home for widows and orphans of deceased veterans in Eaton Rapids, Mich."

Proceeds of the eleventh annual Buddy Poppy sale, by Horace F. Orr, post, No. 540 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., will be used exclusively for the betterment of conditions among all disabled ex-service men and their dependents, without reference to their color, creed, nationality or affiliation. The ladies of the Auxiliary will have charge of the sale and the public is urged to patronize the worthy cause.

As in years past, Horace F. Orr post maintains a relief fund to be used only for the assistance of disabled and unfortunate comrades, their dependents and the dependents of deceased veterans who are in need. The proceeds from the annual Buddy Poppy sale to be held May 28 will create this fund for the coming year, to be administered by a committee of post members.

In addition to supplying aid for comrades in distress, in the matter of temporary sustenance, emergency medical or hospital treatment, military funeral for deceased veterans and veterans' bureau liaison work, the proceeds of the annual Buddy Poppy sale also contribute to another worthy cause.

One cent from each Buddy Poppy sold by the local post is contributed to the maintenance and development of the V. F. W. National Home at Eaton Rapids, Michigan. This home provides a refuge for the orphans of deceased or totally disabled veterans. Here the children are reared in "family units" under the supervision of a "house mother," and wherever possible, mothers and their own children are able to live together. The V. F. W. Home is providing these children with all the comforts available, including clothes, education and eventually a vocation that will permit them to make their own way.

The V. F. W. home, located on 861 acres of beautiful farm land and founded in 1925, is developing rapidly. Several V. F. W. state organizations plan to follow in the footsteps of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Michigan and the joint department of California and Nevada, state units that have already erected modern cottages at the National Home, dedicated to the memory of their deceased comrades and the care of their orphans.

Wilkinson Can't Go To Washington
Washington, May 26—(AP)—For this session, at least, it is unlikely that the Senate will confirm the nomination of Judge James J. Wilkinson to the United States Circuit Court.

Sentence of Al Capone, the notorious gang lord, Wilkinson has been under fire of labor organizations for past decisions they regard as unfair and oppressive. The Judiciary subcommittee which has studied the nomination all through this session, finally asked the jurist to appear for a personal statement on his past acts and his views.

He advised this group yesterday that he will not be able to come for several weeks because of a long and important case now before him. Members of the committee indicated they would not vote on the nomination before hearing him.

SOCIALIST DRY LEADERS FIGHT REPEAL PLANKS

Referendum On Action of National Convention Demanded

Milwaukee, Wis., May 26—(AP)—An 11th hour strategy by dry leaders at the National Socialist convention here has jarred the party's presidential election platform and made it questionable today whether a prohibition repeal would be an issue.

The prohibitionists recalled a convention rule yesterday that referred the issue to a vote of all party members after the delegates in three ballots Tuesday night voted to include a repeal plank in the platform. The convention had adjourned soon after the repeal votes were cast.

But yesterday George Goebel of Newark, N. J., a leader of the dry faction, announced he has procured the signatures of 49 per cent of the convention's delegates asking for a party referendum on the prohibition question.

Goebel said only 25 per cent of the delegate signatures were needed to make it mandatory upon the party's executive committee to order such a referendum and until an expression was received from the membership, the repeal plank could not be considered part of the platform. Party members must return the ballots by August 15.

KIDNAPING CASE IN CHICAGO ENDS IN AN ACQUITTAL

Former Asst. State's Attorney Freed By Jury Last Eve

Chicago, May 26—(AP)—The first trial growing out of the many kidnappings in the Chicago area has resulted in the acquittal of Ward Swallow, a former Assistant State's Attorney, of kidnapping the young wife of a physician for ransom.

The jury, after an extended presentation of the state's case, deliberated only six hours last night before returning the verdict. Swallow was the only remaining defendant of four who were brought into court by the state as "members of a nation-wide kidnapping ring."

The kidnap victim, Mrs. Georgia Gehrt, wife of Dr. Max Gehrt, had testified Swallow, a friend of the family, took part in the ransom negotiations for her release. Swallow's counsel waived his right to a defense and rested only on a final statement to the jury that the defendant was an intermediary innocent of any part in the actual plot.

Of the other three defendants, Edward Finner was discharged on a directed verdict of acquittal and John J. Pingera and William Thomas changed their pleas to guilty and await sentence. The highest punishment possible under Illinois statutes is death in the electric chair.

A BOOK A DAY BY BRUCE CATTON

SHARKS FOILED THIS LEOPARD'S LEAP FOR LIFE

Frank Buck is at it again. The genial wild animal collector who told such entertaining tales in "Bring 'Em Back Alive," has produced another book (in collaboration with Edward Anthony) called "Wild Cargo," and if you like animal stories and general, all-around excitement, I commend it to you heartily.

Once again, Mr. Buck tells how he catches wild animals and brings them across the ocean for zoos and circuses in the United States. Evidently it's one of the jobs where, even if you don't make much money, you have lots of fun.

One, for instance, a black leopard escaped from its cage on the deck of a coast steamer in Indo-China. After scaring half the crew into fits, it leaped over the rail and tried to swim ashore—only to get eaten up by two sharks.

Mr. Buck also tells how he penned up a tiger in the Malay peninsula so a movie man could get some good pictures of it, and how he had to wade into the bush to rout the tiger out so that it could be photographed. He tells, too, about the cobra that spat venom in his eye and nearly blinded him; about the pet bear that ate up a writer's manuscript; and thereby relieved Mr. Buck of the company of an unmitigated bore; about the tiger that held the world's record for man-eating; about the python that swallowed a boy and about the elephant that fell out of its sling while being lifted on to a steamer's deck.

The address of Ex-Gov. Small before the state convention at Springfield tomorrow will be broadcast between 1:15 and 1:45 Central Standard time over WLS.

Ex-Follies Girl Divorced Negro

Los Angeles, May 26—(AP)—A former Follies girl, Helen Lee Worthing, has been granted an interlocutory divorce decree from her Negro physician husband, Dr. Eugene C. Nelson.

A decree was given her yesterday. A former divorce suit, in April 1931, had ended in a reconciliation.

The actress charged her husband with physical attacks upon her, and claimed she was so severely injured that she was forced to summon police on numerous occasions. She said he had fits of temper and threatened to kill her.

DRYS TO MEET IN CAPITAL TO MAINTAIN VIEWS

Wet And Dry Issue Is Proving Troublesome To G. O. P.

Washington, May 26—(AP)—The stir of preparation for the Republican national convention has developed an undercurrent of disquiet harboring trouble for the meeting which is supposed to renominate President Hoover.

News that the President has been talking of the party's prohibition plank to Republican officials has caused a flood of inquiries to descend upon the Capital. They come largely from prohibitionists, many of whom are disturbed at reports that the plank talk leans towards resubmission.

Individually and in organized groups, the drys are planning a descent upon the Capital next week to consider campaign strategy.

On top of this there is some displeasure within the ranks of party wheelhorses. The President is having difficulties shaping plans because of the possibility that Congress may still be in session when the convention opens. But he has failed to consult with some of the party's congressional leaders upon his designs. Even Senator Fess, the party chairman who is to be replaced after the convention, was not advised, until after

FLIERS DEMAND AIRPORTS OPEN TO ALL PILOTS

Action Taken at Closing Session World's Congress Today

Rome, May 26—(AP)—The first world congress of trans-oceanic fliers ended early today after an all night battle in which there was a sharp national division, over "freedom of the air," with a view to future competition in trans-Atlantic commercial aviation routes.

The line-up in the battle was France and Spain against the United States, Great Britain, Italy and Germany. It ended with a vote of the resolution introduced by General Balbo of Italy and Wolfgang von Gronau of Germany demanding that all governments leave their airports open to trans-Atlantic flying, as they leave their seaports.

The French and Spanish delegations refrained from voting. The battle on the floor of the congress was marked by bitter clashes between General Balbo and Dieudonne Coste, the French flier.

Coste objected to the resolution as "political." He was vigorously supported by Lotti Iglesias of Spain.

Harold Gatty, American round-the-world flier, supported the resolution, declaring that "an American company is now securing a monopoly on the northern air route by way of Greenland."

British Golfers Play Own Tourney

Muirfield, Scotland, May 26—(AP)—There was no Bobby Jones or Jess Sweetser around to gum up the works this year, and as a result Britain's own were left today to fight it out among themselves for the British amateur championship, one of the most cherished of golfing crowns.

The last of eleven American hopefuls who started play Monday dropped out yesterday, three of them having gotten that far. They had the consolation, however of knowing that most of the tournament's favorites were on the outside with them.

Only one member of this year's British Walker Cup team survived today. Eric McRivie, the Scotch internationalist, T. A. Torrance, captain of the English team, was overwhelmed yesterday by a 21-year old Jack McLean, and Lester Hartley, another Walker cupper, also was eliminated.

David Martin of California was the first of the surviving Americans to pass out yesterday, and he was followed shortly by the Sweeney brothers, Charles and Robert, students at Oxford.

ACE OF EARTH

Berlin—Prof. Ernest J. Opik of the Tartu University observatory, Estonia, is the latest scientist to advance a theory on the age of the earth. His new theory limits the age of the universe to 3,000,000,000 years and hints that it was made out of nothingness, according to Biblical accounts.

Honolulu Assault Case Off Calendar

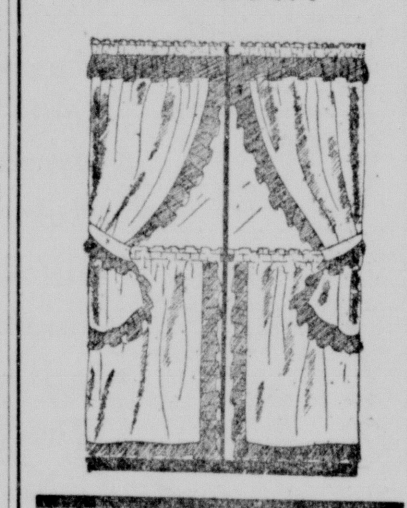

Honolulu, May 26—(AP)—The Ala Moana assault case which climaxed in the lynching of a young Hawaiian and the subsequent conviction of four Americans charged with his death was off Honolulu's trial calendar today.

A second trial of four youths charged with attacking Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of a Naval lieutenant, was removed from the trial calendar yesterday on motion of Prosecutor John C. Kelley. A future date will be selected. The first trial ended in a jury disagreement.

While awaiting the second trial, Joseph Kahahawai, one of the five youths charged with the attack, was abducted and slain. Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie, Mrs. Granville Portecuse, husband and mother respectively of Mrs. Massie, E. J. Lord and A. O. Jones, naval enlisted men, were convicted of the slaying, and sentenced to 10 years each for manslaughter. Governor Lawrence M. Judd commuted the sentence to one hour in custody. The convicted four and Mrs. Massie have left Hawaii.

DIXON IS GIVEN WIDE PUBLICITY IN PLACES TO GO

Standard Oil Co. Is Advertising Beauties Of River Valley

The city of Dixon and the Rock River Valley are given much prominence in a new booklet issued by the Standard Oil Co., and compiled by John P. Roberts, entitled "Places To Go." Local manager, C. J. Brophy received a supply of the interesting travel booklets today and they are now being distributed from all of the Standard service stations.

The attractions of the Pines State park as a mecca for motor tourists and the beauties to be observed along Rock river in this vicinity are outlined in the booklet. Concerning the Pines state park, the booklet describes that interesting scenic spot as being located in Ogle county, off state highway route 2, and being the only tract of white pines in Illinois. Six hundred acres of magnificent forest, traversed by the picturesque Pine creek and nearby, Grand Detour, the famous bend in Rock River.

Referring to the Rock river area, the editor calls attention to the fine state paved highway, the Black Hawk Trail leading from Dixon to Rockford along the banks of the picturesque Rock river, a region of magic beauty, every rise of the road opening up a vista lovelier than the last, with valleys, rugged cliffs, woodlands and wide grassy spots to complete the perfect picture.

The foreword to the section devoted to Illinois says: "By Thy rivers gently flowing, Illinois, Illinois." That song is beautifully expressive of scenic and historic Illinois. For the land that lies between the Mississippi and the Wabash rivers and between Lake Michigan and the Ohio river is a veritable picture of hills, cliffs, woodlands, streams, lakes, prairies and winding highways. Historically it is replete with memories of Abraham Lincoln, U. S. Grant and other famous Americans. And it abounds in Indian lore and relics. Illinois is literally ribboned with paved roads leading to scores of historic spots. To the tourists, it presents an ever-ending panorama of beautiful and interesting, a panorama plentifully sprinkled with parks, tourist camps and accommodations for the visitor.

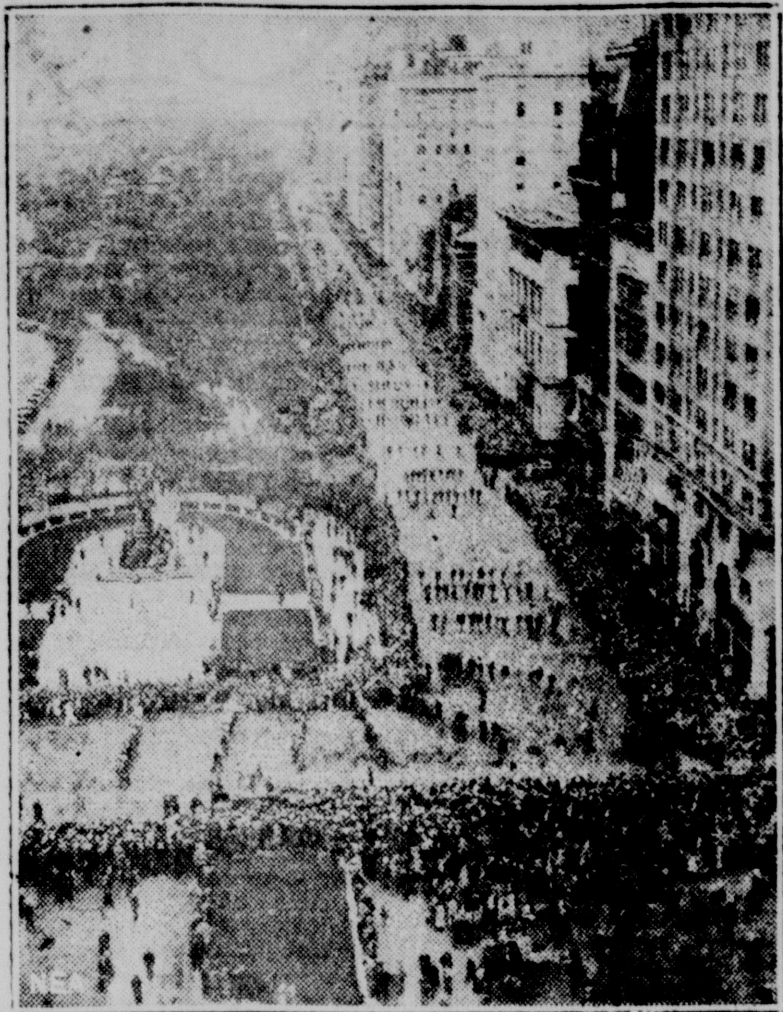

The booklet does not attempt to include all the attractive points in the territory covered, but merely indicates the wide choice the motor car owner has, wherever he may be, of places of interest to visit. Populous cities are not featured since it is one of the purposes of the booklet to start the motorist on the open road to places where he can gain relaxation and refreshment in nature's playground.

The booklets are being distributed free as part of the Company's great Spring and Summer advertising campaign. This campaign will utilize much space in successive advertisements in 1,621 newspapers to inspire people to get their cars, forget their troubles and "go places." As to where to go the advertisements will refer to the booklet.

Standard Oil's purpose in the advertising campaign is reported to be not only to stimulate the demand for its gasoline and oil, but also to do something constructive toward improving the state of the public mind. With some experience in analyzing mass psychology, the Company's advertising experts have decided that it will be worth many dollars to get people out of their offices and homes this summer on week-end trips that will set them thinking about something more refreshing than business conditions.

"We Want Beer" was the slogan of the day. And this aerial view shows a part of the tens of thousands of thirsty New Yorkers who turned out for the gigantic "beer-for-taxation" parade inspired by Mayor James J. Walker. the places recommended to the touring public have prospect of gaining from the advertising in quite as material a way as the Company itself can.

"I was brought up on a farm. That was a good many years ago and things have changed. Possibly peddlers still come through the country with their wares and unfold them to the housewife. Their coming was anticipated with pleasure by the youngsters of my day. These peddlers would unroll their packs and display the most gorgeous colors. Oftentimes Mother would be persuaded by the youngsters to buy things which we did not need in times when many things were sorely needed and not to be had by the large family.

"Advertising is a good deal like that. If a merchant makes a flamboyant appeal he sometimes entices people to buy them they do not need or cannot afford, especially in such times as these. The after-effects are not good. A suspicion is created. Many times since I have been in the advertising business I have known merchants to make circuitous appeals which were highly enticing, but which left a bad taste with the customers.

"It is my observation that the best advertisement is the one that intrigues in a quiet, effective way by creating a desire which women at once begin planning how they can satisfy. Resulting purchases save valuable floor space and make for friendly relations.

"The advertisement which creates a desire to investigate has performed its second best purpose. If a woman wants to see an article from an advertisement she has gone a long step toward buying. Customer confidence is created by merchants carrying out their promises. It is then that women feel safe in buying other articles they see in stores that are not advertised, but which they accept with the same implied guarantee. Importunities of salesmen have almost entirely stopped, but so much advertising is discontinued which does not make a legitimate appeal. THESE BE TROUBLESOME TIMES AND ADVERTISING MUST BE CAREFULLY SPREAD BEFORE THE PUBLIC."

HAND, OR FOOT?

LONDON—On whether a monkey's paws are feet or hands hinges whether or not duty shall be paid for their importation at Folkestone. There is no duty on quadrupeds, and the railway importing the monkeys claim they are in this classification. Customs officials, however, think the monkeys have no feet, but four hands, and are dutiable. The case may require court action.

GRIMES PROVES HE'S ABOUT ALL THRU AS PITCHER

Gives Demonstration Of Statement To Former Teammates

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Burling Grimes admitted from the witness chair only three days ago that he was just about "washed up" as big league pitcher, but he would never have gotten away with it had the St. Louis Cardinals been sitting in judgment.

The Red Birds were ready to swear today that the 38-year-old spitballer still has plenty of jolts left in his right arm.

All they needed to refresh their minds was a glance at yesterday's box score, in which they encountered their former teammate for the first time since he helped pitch them to a world championship last October.

Toiling for the Chicago Cubs, he set his old comrades down with seven scattered hits and shut them out 3 to 0. It was Grimes' fourth start for the Cubs and his third victory.

Was Help to Cubs
The triumph not only was a source of satisfaction to the veteran but was a great help to the Cubs in their neck and neck scrap with Boston for the National League top, enabling them to stay within eight percentage points of the pace-setting Braves.

The defeat, on the other hand, nearly tumbled the Cardinals out of the first division, leaving them a half-game ahead of the fifth place New York Giants.

Bobby Brown, the 20-year-old sensation from Birmingham, kept the Braves at the head of the class by defeating Brooklyn, 4 to 2, on four hits. The youngster who began his big league career by licking Dazzy Vance in a mound duel a month ago was invincible in all but two innings. He received some valuable assistance from another of the Braves' rookies, Fritz Knoch, who pounded in two runs with a double and scored a third.

Slugging Match
For the third straight day the Giants and Phils engaged in an old fashioned slugfest and the Giants made it two out of three for the series by winning 12 to 8. Bill Terry led the winners' attack knocking in four runs with his tenth home run of the year, a double and a single.

Fumbles by Heath and Hafey helped Pittsburgh score five runs in the first inning and eventually trim Cincinnati, 9 to 4, for the second straight day.

Only two games were scheduled in the American League. One at Chicago was rained out and the other, at Detroit was washed away in the fourth inning with the St. Louis Browns ahead, 1 to 0. It was no contest.

Reduced 30 Pounds Never Felt Better

Safe Way To Lose Fat

Take the case of Miss Madeline Crowley, for instance, who lives in Little Rock, Ark. Just read her letter:

"I have used Kruschen Salts for one year—when I started I weighed 140 pounds—now I weigh 110 pounds and never felt better in my life."

That's the big reason a host of men and women take Kruschen to lose weight—as the fat goes you gain in health—skin clears—eyes grow bright—activity replaces indolence.

Take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—cut down on fatty meats, potatoes and sweets—a jar of Kruschen that costs but a trifle lasts 4 weeks—get it at Schindler's Pharmacy or any drug store in the world—but for your health's sake demand and get Kruschen Salts.—Adv.

Kay Don Is After Motorboat Record

Gardone, Italy, May 26—(AP)—Kay Don, the speeding Englishman who saw his world motorboat speed record shattered a few months ago by Gar Wood of the United States, was prepared today for a valiant attempt to reclaim his lost laurels.

After weeks of trials, Don yesterday announced his new Miss England III was fit and ready for the assault on Wood's mark of 111.72 miles an hour and that he expected to send it roaring over the waters of Lake Garda today.

FIRST FATALITY AT INDIANAPOLIS MOTOR SPEEDWAY

Driver Killed Instantly: Mechanic Badly Injured

Indianapolis, May 26—(AP)—Tossed from a race car as it hurtled the other retaining wall at the Indianapolis motor speedway, Harry Cox, 28, riding mechanic, was killed, and Benny Benefield, 25, driver, was injured yesterday.

The men, both of Indianapolis, were making a practice spin preparing to try to qualify for the 500 mile race to be run here Monday.

As they emerged from the south-west turn at a moderate speed, the left front wheel gave way, throwing the speedster out of control at a spot 2000 yards from where the same car was wrecked during race trials last year. Joe Caccia, driver, and Clarence Grove, mechanic, were killed in that mishap. The car was rebuilt for Benefield to drive.

The racer caromed off the inner retaining wall, skidded across the bushes and plunged over the outer wall, brushing the top of one tree before crumbling against the trunk of a second and falling eighteen feet to the ground. Driver and mechanic were tossed clear of the wreckage.

Cox, a former mechanic and parachute jumper with the Indiana National Guard, was killed instantly. Benefield, an experienced driver, where it was said he had suffered a possible concussion of the brain, and lacerations about the face, head and hands.

Meanwhile the twenty-ninth car to qualify as a starter in the race was sent through its ten-mile speed test yesterday by Chet Miller of Detroit at 111:053 miles per hour. Only forty cars will be permitted to start. Qualifying trials end Saturday.

Hooks and Slides

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER

Discussion of that interview Wesley Ferrell, Indian pitcher, gave to the baseball writers in New York, in which he named Joe McCarthy as the greatest manager in baseball, has set the boys in the press boxes all a-flutter.

A day or so after Ferrell made his amazing statement, one of the Cleveland writers asked him on what grounds he based his estimate.

"Because of the way he handles his pitchers," was the young Carolinian's reply.

SWELL HANDLING—
McCarthy at the time happened to be handling his pitchers very well, indeed. No matter what flinger he sent to the mound it seemed the chap would pitch a shut out game. Four shutouts in a row had just been hurled by the Yankee slabsters.

That was remarkable handling of pitchers, sure enough.

THEN, THE BROWNS—
A few days after Mr. Ferrell had suffered his ranking of managers to be printed, he was chosen by Manager Peckinpaugh to pitch against the St. Louis Browns.

During the three years of his major league career, the Brownies have been more or less a setup for the big Indian right-hander. Thus when the selection of Ferrell was announced, the lads in the press box began combing their skulls for a possible new lead on another Ferrell victory.

The Indians fell upon Bump Hadley with gusto, piling up a seven-run lead for Ferrell in the first few innings. It seemed to be an answer to Ferrell's complaint that his team hadn't been scoring runs behind him recently, in the style which he had become accustomed to expect.

FAVOR WALKER TO BEAT BASQUE IN BOUT TONIGHT

Experts Figure Ten Rounds Will Find Both On Feet

New York, May 26—(AP)—Although he will be forced to concede some 25 pounds in weight and six inches in height, Mickey Walker, the modern giant-killer, has been established a 7 to 5 favorite in his 10-round bout with Paulino Uzcudun tonight at Madison Square Garden.

The Rumson Bulldog has been training seriously for weeks and is said to be in equally as fine condition as when he beat Jack Sharkey here last summer. That, and the fact that Walker always has

EXIT MR. FERRELL—

Then, very suddenly, it happened. The Browns had been nicking the Ferrell delivery sporadically for a couple of innings, cutting down the score to 9 to 4. In the seventh, Ferrell wobbled still further. The first two men to face him drove out ringing singles.

Then Manager Peckinpaugh waded to the bull pen, where old Sarge George Connelly, he of the rubber arm was laconically warning: "And Young Wesley Ferrell was called right out of there!"

Master Peckinpaugh can do a bit of handling himself, it seems. He didn't waste much time after the Browns had indicated they hadn't given up, even with the great Ferrell pitching in front of a seven-run lead.

As Ferrell walked to the bench, the fans gave the Indians' very best pitcher, the young man who has been called "a second Mathewson," a hearty salvo of boos.

HE CAN'T TAKE IT—
Ferrell, by the way, who is a temperamental young man, is not deeply in love with his home town fans.

"These puny fans burn me up," he said in another interview last year. "They cheer when I pitch a no-hit game and boo when I get knocked out. A baseball fan doesn't understand that a pitcher can't always be right. I never lost a game to Washington until the other day, and they booed me when I walked off the mound."

"Don't you like the Cleveland fans?" he was asked.

"It isn't that. I like a lot of Cleveland people. I've got a lot of friends among the fans here. But it is a heluva note when a pitcher gets booed when he isn't on."

It is a free country of course, and a man is entitled to his opinions, isn't he? Or, isn't he?

shown at his best against big men, has caused the experts to favor him over the Basque.

The consensus was it would go the full route. Paulino frequently has been beaten and does not stack up with Walker as a boxer, but there is not a knockout against his long ring record. The possibility of the Spaniard knocking out the Bulldog was considered even more remote. It promises to be a rough, tough battle between a pair of rough, tough, veterans.

For Walker, the bout means a possible chance against Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, with the winner to challenge next for the heavyweight title. For Paulino it means only a chance to upset another ambitious young man, one of the best things he does.

FOURTEEN GET LETTERS FROM COACH BOWERS

Dixon High Track Men Rewarded For Their Excellent Work

By DON HILLIKER.

Fourteen members of one of Dixon high school's most successful track teams received letters at yesterday's assembly meet. The 1932 squad won five local meets, grabbed the North Central Conference trophy, was third in the Freeport district, and scored three points in the state meet last week. The cross-country team placed third at Muscatine, Iowa, and defeated Sterling Athletic Director A. C. Bowers presented letters to Captain Ogan, whose 114 points during the season set a record; David Talty, Atry Compton, Homer Schildberg, seniors; Curtis Strong, Elton Williams, James Ramsey, Lyle Fordham, William Smith, Joe Beech and Byron Weidman, juniors; Fred Padgett, Glen Flanigan, sophomores and Paul Condon, freshman. A manager's award went to Nelson Lancaster. Trophies for the conference and relay champions were turned over to Principal A. H. Lancaster.

Saturday, May 28, the conference golf and tennis meets are scheduled. The Dixon Country Club course will be the scene of the students and faculty golf tournament. Dixon high's candidates will play their qualifying round Friday afternoon. Five of the following will represent the local institution: Dale Reis, Lloyd Muzey, Robert Myers, David Talty, Willard Thompson, Lyle Drew, Harry Lazzeri, Francis Henry Albert, Risley and Jack Kaufmann. Four students plan to engage in the league tennis tourney at DeKalb Saturday as follows: Albert Whitmore, George Risley, Paul Condon and Jack Habacker will play.

Soft Ball Games

Stopped By Storm

All of the games in the American soft ball league scheduled for last evening were postponed on account of the heavy rain storm at 6 o'clock, and will be played at a date to be decided upon later. The games scheduled for this evening are as follows:

Crowns vs Railroaders at north athletic field.

DeMolay vs James at south athletic field.

Loafers vs Specials at Independent field.

Risley's Terrors were scheduled to play Jack Wilson's Yellow Cabs last evening at the field east of the city, but the latter aggregation failed to appear when the time for the game was called and the Terrors claimed the victory by the forfeit route with a 9 to 0 score.

Paddock Restored To Good Standing

Los Angeles, May 26—(AP)—With an Amateur Athletic Union registration card once more in his possession, Charles William Paddock, once known as the "world fastest human," turned an eye today toward a place on the United States Olympic team.

The registration committee of the A. A. U. late last night reinstated Paddock. When Charley applied for a card last January the A. A. U. turned him down. At that time the body neither termed the sprint star a professional, nor suspended him.

Paddock, however, was quoted to the effect he had been refused a card because of his motion picture work. No statement was made by the A. A. U. last night.

Illinois Upsets Big Ten Baseball

Chicago, May 26—(AP)—The Big Ten baseball championship race was a wild toss-up today.

Just when Purdue was about to clinch the title, Illinois came along yesterday to drop the Boilemachers, 10 to 4 and hoist Indiana into first place.

With the season almost over, Indiana had the inside track with five victories and two defeats but Iowa, Purdue, Illinois and Wisconsin still had chances for a tie.

An eight run scoring spurge in the eighth inning off Hoppengardner and Hartman stopped the Boilemachers at Champaign yesterday. The game was anybody's until the wild inning when the Illini bunched hits with Purdue errors to clinch the victory. Joe Wrobke held the Boilemachers to seven hits and collected three for himself.

The address of Ex-Gov. Small before the state convention at Springfield tomorrow will be broadcast between 1:15 and 1:45 Central Standard time over WLS.

31. State Income Taxes

The Federal Government has used an income tax since 1913 and with this many of us are familiar. The increasing need for revenue by the states, and the failure of existing sources to meet the need, has led about half the states to adopt some form of tax upon incomes. This is either a tax upon personal incomes, upon corporate incomes, or upon both.

The State of Wisconsin, in 1911 adopted a systematic income tax law and may be said to be the first state really to attempt to make incomes an important base for revenue. Other states soon followed this example, and the trend has continually been towards a wider adoption of state income taxes. In addition to Wisconsin, New York and Massachusetts are considered as states having the best administered income taxes.

State income tax rates are generally progressive, although they are undoubtedly influenced by the Federal tax. In Wisconsin the rates range from 1 to 6 per cent while in New York the range is from 1 to 3 per cent. The exemptions are generally much lower than those provided by the Federal law, although in New York they are somewhat higher. This in any state a great many more individuals will be subject to the state tax than to the Federal one.

The fact that the machinery of the state is used to collect an income tax does not necessarily mean that the state treasury is the only beneficiary. In many states a part of the receipts are allocated to the local taxing bodies. Thus in Wisconsin 80 per cent of the collections are distributed to the local political units while in New York one-half of the amount collected is distributed to localities. The use of the income tax recognizes the fact that it makes no difference upon what base a tax is levied, it can only continue to be paid from income. Income is the best measure of one's ability to pay taxes, and more reliance upon it as a base indicates greater justice in the revenue systems of the states.

Washington—The "four generals" of the house—one of them ranks actually as a sergeant—nobly met the enemy in an effort to save 2,000 of their brother officers but were forced to sound a retreat.

The strategy of a lone non-military man was too much for them.

The "four generals," as they were dubbed on the war department appropriation bill, are Goss of Connecticut, Chipfield of Illinois, Martin of Oregon and Parker of Georgia. The man who turned them back and who can't even claim the rank of a buck private is Collins of Mississippi.

Collins, chairman of the subcommittee which considered the needs of the army for the next year, included in his recommendations to the house a proposal to retire some 2,000 officers. If the bill becomes law, some of the big names in the army must go.

Generals Shoulder Arms

There's General Fuqua, chief of infantry, for example, and General Ashburn, chief of the Inland Waterways corporation. General Henry, chief of cavalry, and others—all stand in danger of having their careers ended.

It was to save men like these—2,000 of them—that the "four generals" shouldered their arms.

Martin of Oregon, perhaps, was the commanding officer. He is a retired major general. He has seen active service with combat troops in the Spanish-American war, the Philippines, Boxer campaign in China, and during the world war commanded a division.

Parker of Georgia is a broad-shouldered, husky retired brigadier general of the Georgia national guard who served as a captain of infantry in the world war. Like General Martin he is serving his first term in congress.

Chipfield of Illinois was a judge advocate general during the world war.

Collins Wins Out

The fourth "general" is Goss of Connecticut, a top sergeant during the war.

Day after day these four stood shoulder to shoulder battling. But the strategy of Collins, who

U. S. Launches
Water Drive To Save Wild Ducks

Washington—A nationwide campaign to save the diminishing wild fowl was launched today by the United States Bureau of Biological Survey and its Shock Troops in a "Roll-Up-The-Sleeves" drive to flood dry water areas and create small lakes and ponds for wildfowl throughout the United States.

Among the first Shock Troops to respond to the call of Paul Redington, chief of the U. S. Bureau, were many of the state game and conservation commissions, the Isaac Walton League of America, the American Game Association, the National Association of Audubon Societies, American Legionnaires, and state and local organizations of sportsmen. The National Grange, the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National League of Municipalities and other agencies are expected to enlist their respective aid.

While waiting for Congress to appropriate sufficient money to establish wildfowl refuges now for the diminishing wildfowl, Mr. Redington said, his bureau and the Shock Troops are going into the field, particularly the nesting grounds, and with their own hands, picks and shovels, restore innumerable small water areas and create others for nesting, resting and feeding grounds. This will require not only the creation of shallow depths of water, but also in some instances the planting of natural duck and other wildfowl foods, principally aquatic plants and tubers. Millions of young ducks died last Spring and Summer for want of water that dried up shortly after the broods hatched.

Though the campaign is to be nationwide, particular efforts are to be concentrated in the breeding grounds, the northern tier of states west of Lake Michigan, Mr. Redington said.

"No area is so small to restore," Mr. Redington said. "While not neglecting the larger areas, the shirt-sleeved brigades will have as their objective the restoring of every like pond and slough that is dry or does not contain sufficient water, and the creation of new ponds and lakes. Every pond increase to a great extent," he concluded.

BOYS IN MANHOLE
 Boston—Three small boys went down into a manhole in Lynn to catch fish that had been swimming up Moore's Brook under the street. The manhole cover had been replaced while they were in the hole and they were imprisoned. John Murray, driving over the manhole, heard cries coming from under his car. He stopped, raised the cover and rescued the youths who were in the last stages of fright.

WORLD WAR

BY "YARNS"

LIEUT. FRANK E. HAGAN

The Original "Doughnut Girl"

Today she is known as Mrs. Robert E. Walbridge, wife of a Peterboro (N. H.) business man who served as a lieutenant in the One Hundred and Third Machine Gun Battalion. As one of the two daughters of Colonel McIntyre, once a Salvation Army commander in New England, she and her sister, Gladys, were among the first contingent of "Salles" to join the American army in France. In March, 1918, the girls set up their field kitchen back of Ansoville in an old mill that the doughboys helped them repair and there day after day they made and served coffee by the gallon, pies by the hundred and doughnuts by the thousand. In June their canteen was at Roulecourt and at the end of that month they were moved to the Chateau Thierry sector and later toward the Swiss frontier.

They saw service with the Thirty-seventh, Forty-second and Seventy-seventh divisions. They were in the Argonne and at Thincourt when that village was destroyed by the hundred and thirty-first division and in a general action on Boston common the general cited them for bravery in continuing their work under fire at the front. PUBLISHERS IN MEETING PLEDGE HOOVER SUPPORT

Non-Partisan Backing For President In Relief Plans

Washington, May 26.—(AP)—Backed by pledges of aid from leaders of the American press, President Hoover today looked more hopefully toward a speedy slashing of the congressional knots delaying budget-balancing legislation.

The pledges came voluntarily from numerous members of a group of 39 leading newspaper publishers who gathered last night in the President's study for a conference which lasted until after midnight.

The President and his guests talked freely about their views of the country's present needs, and about the state of sentiment in Congress and in the nation at large. Apparently there was no concerted program of action submitted or agreed to, but from some conferees came conflicting reports as to what had taken place.

Disagree On Tax The sales tax, spoken of at length both by the President and his guests, caused some of these disagreeing reports. In one quarter the discussion was interpreted as meaning the Chief Executive considered the general sales tax not only not dead, but available now to clear away the delays in Congress over balancing next year's budget.

But other conferees denied this strongly. They said that a reported shift of sentiment towards the sales tax among those House members who helped kill it, had been cited by the President merely as an illustration of rapid changes which the complexion of Congress has undergone pointing, inferentially, to the need for strongly led public opinion.

Mr. Hoover, these publishers said, did not commit himself for the sales tax nor did he sound out the editors on the issue. Beyond this, the newspapers were reticent to discuss the meeting, saying only that the score of publishers who spoke, strongly favored molding of public opinion behind non-partisan, quick enactment of measures vital to balancing the budget.

White House officials said today that President Hoover had gained a pledge of support from the newspaper publishers for setting up a network of reconstruction committees in all large cities along the line of the banker-businessmen group created in New York under the chairmanship of Owen D. Young.

Sympathize With Program It was said at the White House

Chicago, May 26.—(AP)—George S. Milnor, General Manager of the Farmers' National Grain Corporation, said today there was no doubt in his mind the government would be urged at once to invoke the Grain Futures Act against the Chicago Board of Trade for its suspension of the Updike Grain Company and two of its officers.

Commenting on the suspension, announced yesterday by the board, Milnor declared it "hardly seems possible that prejudice against the Federal Farm Board, Farmers' National Grain Corporation and the cooperative movement in general could influence the judgement of business men in rendering such an important decision."

Farmers National purchased the Updike Grain company last year to acquire through it clearing privileges which the Board of Trade denied to the cooperative itself under a rule barring corporations. The purchase was not made public for some time and this was the basis of the Board of Trade charges against Updike.

The company itself was suspended indefinitely on charges that its President, Fred Thatcher, and its Secretary and Treasurer, J. Fletcher Florentine, "presumably with the knowledge of officers of the Farmers National, concealed in their statements that the Farmers National was actually owner of their stock when registering their ownership."

SPANKED "SEVERELY" BOSTON—If what Mrs. Mary Grace Birch says is true, her husband has decided not to spare the "rod" and spoil his wife. In suing for a divorce here Mrs. Birch explained her husband, Albert Francis Birch, Harvard instructor, had me with a slipper and spanked me severely. It was not said whether he turned her across his knee and used the slipper to administer the spanking.

The address of Ex-Gov. Small before the state convention at Springfield tomorrow will be broadcast between 1:15 and 1:45 Central Standard time over WLS. 11

Don't delay—avail yourself of one of the Dixon's Telegraph's Accident Insurance Policies. The premium for 1 year is $1.25. In case of death your family will receive $1,000. Others have. Again we say do not delay—delays are dangerous. 11

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

CHAPTER I

THE green roadster cutting its way, sleek and ribbon-like, down the boulevard came to an abrupt, jolting stop at the intersection with Twenty-fourth street.

Cherry Dixon's chin rose to meet the sweep of the cold wind. Fluttering ends of a coral scarf escaped from her throat to do a mad dance over one shoulder. It was one of those days in early April when brilliant sunshine showered down on the world without warming it. The pale gold radiance seemed almost to make the air more biting. But it was spring sunshine, spring air and the combination was irresistible.

Cherry crooked her wrist for a quick glance at a watch dial. Only 1:10 now. She was not due for 20 minutes. There was plenty of time—oh, plenty to reach the Wellington for her 1:30 engagement.

She had known all along there was time enough. Little danger that today of all days she would be late!

Another halt for traffic lights and then on again. Cherry's impatience was gone. What a day it was to be 19, to know the beige suit was as becoming as it was new, to be on her way to meet an exciting young man and to know—at least to know almost—that he cared as much about the meeting as she did!

It had been the greatest luck in the world, surely, that for the second time in a week she was to see Dan Phillips. Oh, it had been simple to manage, telling Mother about and arranging to commute meeting and

There had been a committee meeting—until Gretchen postponed it. For that matter, what other girl of 19 would have to explain where she was going and with whom if the notion to take a drive at mid-day happened to strike her?

THE roadster reached the viaduct and was swept into the slow stream of east-bound travel. At Twelfth street—Wellington's busiest thoroughfare, boasting three buildings 20 stories high—the flash of green was almost lost in the crash of taxicabs, trucks, limousines and small, wheezing vehicles.

There was no time now to try to justify her deception, no time for day dreams. The shrill, authoritative blast of an officer's whistle sent the swarming mass ahead. The girl in the green car managed expertly to keep abreast of the current. Three blocks more and the roadster swerved to the curb before the Hotel Wellington.

Cherry stepped out, surrendered the car to a doorman and entered the gray stone building. She crossed the lobby and mounted the broad stairway leading to the mezzanine.

Mazie Cassidy whose glowing tithen curls and blue eyes made the corner stand a highly decorative corner of the lobby tapped the arm of her friend, Joe Kampschmidt, who was leaning over the glass surface of the counter.

"Well—look what blew in!" Mazie whispered in a tone that belied her indifferent gaze.

Kampschmidt concentrated on the slim figure ascending the stairway. "Some baby!" he said casually. "Who is she?"

"Some baby's right!" Mazie commented. "What I wouldn't give for the dough her old man's got! Cherry Dixon—that's her name. Lives out in Sherwood Heights in one of those swell houses with a yard around it as big as a farm. I've seen her picture on the society pages. Most of the time she's away—in Europe or at some swell school or something. Gosh—some people have all the luck!"

It was 20 minutes after Cherry

CHERRY DIXON

Dixon's arrival that a tall young man strode into the Wellington lobby. He wore a gray suit and carried a topcoat. His gray felt hat was tipped at an angle just slightly rakish. Broad shoulders, rather angular. Not a handsome young man but an attractive one.

In a dozen strides he had reached the stairway. Someone sang out, "Hi! Phillips!" just before he rounded the bend of the stairs. The young man turned, waved in salute and continued on his way.

THE mezzanine floor of the Hotel Wellington was a rather narrow gallery running the length of the Twelfth street side of the building. It was thickly carpeted and furnished in shades of wood green, bronze and ivory. Groups of overstuffed chairs, benches and four high-backed lounges were arranged near the iron work railing to overlook the first floor. Small desks and chairs stood beside the wall.

The lighting was dim because heavy draperies shut out the daylight and only small desk lamps supplemented it.

The young man in gray gained the top step and looked about. None of the persons in sight seemed to interest him. There was a stout man in dark-rimmed spectacles writing at the nearest desk. Farther on two matrons engaged in conversation, one of them gesturing emphatically. At the extreme end of the gallery a small boy was bobbing about after a mechanical toy.

The young man stepped forward uncertainly. All at once he caught sight of a beige shoulder nearly hidden by the sides of a wing-backed chair. He made for that chair.

"So there you are!"

"Oh, Dan—!"

"Cherry!" Brown eyes laughed up at gray ones. The girl was prettier when she smiled. The green velvet of the chair was a perfect background for her coloring. The small, rather oval face was creamy ivory except where tinges of rose burned through on each cheek. Curling lashes made the dark eyes darker. Her lips were crimson, possibly explained by the silver vanity she held. Nature had designed those lips a trifle wide but the effect was charming.

The tilted brim of her close fitting brown hat revealed a crescent of dark hair over one temple. Except for the brown hat and coral scarf Cherry was entirely in beige—beige suit and sweater, beige pumps and cobweb hose, gloves and even a purse of the same shade. The tone suited her perfectly.

DAN PHILLIPS pulled the nearest chair nearer and swung into it.

"A thousand pardons if I'm late!" he began. "I had three clocks and a watch and I set 'em all—"

"But you're not late. You're five minutes ahead of time. See?" Cherry held up a slender wrist banded with patinum. The tiny oblong dial on the platinum band recorded 25 minutes past one. "I-I came in early for some errands and finished them sooner than I expected," she added. Prevarication No. 11 for Miss Cherry Dixon that day, but surely she must keep him from guessing at her eagerness.

"Then it's all right. Of course the three clocks each keep different time and I couldn't be sure—excuse me, Miss Dixon, but I've got to stop right here and tell you that of all God's fairest creatures you are the prettiest, the most utterly, devastating—!"

"Please, Mr. Phillips!" The cheeks were crimson but the girl's eyes were laughing.

"Mr. Phillips? I thought it was going to be 'Dan' from now on!"

"Well, then, Dan, stop it. You're making fun of me!"

"If I ever heard blasphemy—I Coyotes and cutlasses! Why, my dear young woman, I'd as soon cut off my right arm. What I really meant to say was that the prettiest girl in the world is looking prettier than she has any right to look. What's going to come of this? You can't keep it up, you know. These old eyes won't stand it. You can't keep getting more beautiful every time I see you!"

Cherry rose to meet the teasing. She said demurely, "Sorry, sir. You can always look away, you know."

"But that's just what I can't do—and don't want to! Say, are you as hungry as I am?"

The abrupt change of subject made the girl laugh. "Perishing," she said. "Positively perishing!"

"Then let's find food!" Phillips snapped two fingers together with a resounding crack and was on his feet. Cherry arose and for an instant they stood there, the girl's head only a little above the youth's shoulder. Her eyes held a dancing light of happiness. The young man's face sobered. He touched her arm and together they moved toward the stairs.

FIVE minutes later they faced each other across a narrow table in the hotel's ivory and blue dining room. Phillips had finished giving the order.

"And how did you improve the shining morning hours?" he asked. "Oh, doing lots of things. Mother's having a small tea next week and I helped with the invitations. Then some dresses came and when I tried them on they were all wrong and I had to telephone about sending them back and arrange for a fitting. After that Sarah gave me a shampoo and a manicure and—let's see—oh, yes, I called Aunt Clara to see if she wanted some concert tickets and she talked about half an hour. She always does. That's all, I guess."

"The life of the idle rich!" Dan Phillips sighed with mock sympathy. "Lord—you must be frazzled."

"How about yourself? What kind of a busy bee have you been?"

"Shall I tell you?" Phillips leaned forward, grinning. "Rolled out of bed at exactly 12 o'clock—according to my four timepieces. I looked at them all, added what the minute hands said, subtracted the hours, multiplied, took the square root and then called the operator downstairs. She told me it was 12 o'clock. The boy's clever—what?"

"That's the laziest kind of morning I ever heard of."

"True enough," Phillips agreed. "But listen, child. Old Uncle Daniel was out until 2:30 this a. m. looking for that kidnapped James kid."

"The one who was stolen? Oh—did you find him?"

ANNIE LAURIE

IT IS Annie Laurie to whom tourists pay reverence when they visit, in Fort Lawn Memorial park, Glendale, Calif., the reproduction of the "Wee Kirk in the Heather," the church the heroine of this oldest and sweetest of love songs is said to have attended at Glendale, near her Scottish home. But 'tis William Douglas, her devoted lover and author of the original version of the poem, to whom honors are due.

Annie Laurie, stripped of Douglas' adoring poetry and the lulling music which we all know, was but a braw Scotch lassie after all, with a "rolling eye" and but little sense of duty. Born in 1852, at Maxwellton house, Glendale, she grew up to be the most charming and provocative young lady in all Dumfriesshire.

How William Douglas felt about her he wrote down for all the world to sing. In spite, however, of her "promise true" of which he boasted in his song, Annie married one Alexander Ferguson while William was off to the wars. As the wicked often do, she flourished, even to her eighty-second year!

Douglas has been as unlucky as a poet as he was in love. Bereft of his Annie Laurie, he was eventually bereft also of his song. The original version had but two verses. The version familiar today is a modern adaptation by Lady John Scott. (© 1931, Western Newspaper Union.)

WORLD WAR

BY "YARNS"

LIEUT. FRANK E. HAGAN

An 11-Year-Old Hero

"The boy stood on the burning deck"—as a matter of fact the deck wasn't afire but it was most decidedly a "hot place" in which eleven-year-old Jack Ansley, son of Capt. Charles Ansley of the coal barge Lansford, found himself that morning of July 21, 1918, off the coast of Cape Cod, Mass. For the Lansford was one of four barges which was being towed around the cape by a sea-going tug, Perth Amboy, when suddenly the U-156 (one of the six German submarines which succeeded in running the gantlet of destroyers, cruisers and submarines patrolling the Atlantic coast and which sunk thousands of tons of American shipping in our waters) loomed up through the fog and began shelling the tug and the barges.

After setting the tug afire the barges and the Lansford was showered with shrapnel which burst over the deck of the defenseless craft. Captain Ansley was wounded, killed by a bullet in the head.

In both arms, Jack was wounded, terrified by but instead of being run into the cabin of his father's craft, seized a small American flag and waved it defiantly over the rail at the enemy. Not content with this gesture, he started back to the cabin to get his .22-caliber rifle to return the fire of the submarine's guns! But he was prevented from carrying out his indiscreet plan by his father who ordered the lifeboat launched and the crew to get in it.

Two other boats from the other barges were also manned and the 20 persons on the barges, including three women, wives of officers, and five children, started for the shore less than three miles away. Although they were fired upon by the raider, none of the women or children was wounded, but only because of the poor aim of the submarine gunners. Within a short time they reached Nauset Harbor, a short distance from Orleans and the Lansford's boat came through the breakers, the crowd which had heard the firing and gathered on the shore, saw young Jack Ansley sitting in the bow, still carrying the American flag.

with his own gun just as he was advancing on her with a drawn knife. Fatally wounded, Johnny staggered to his own home where his father called the police and his mother an ambulance to take him to the hospital. He died four days later and his funeral was a gala affair, well attended. Almost immediately after, the wretched affair was being celebrated in song, and Frankie, freed of the toils of the law, bore herself with the pride of a wrong well avenged.

FRANKIE AND JOHNNY

"FRANKIE and Johnny were lovers" goes a familiar song, and few of its many singers perhaps know that Frankie and Johnny were real lovers, who lived in the negro section of St. Louis not so long ago, and that Frankie is still alive, a thick-set colored woman, now fifty-nine years old, with graying hair and a razor scar received some forty years ago across one cheek.

AIR PATHS of GLORY

MAITLAND AND HEGENBERGER

By DEXTER TEED
NEA Service Writer

Two army aviators shot a plane at a mark 2400 miles away and—hit the bull's eye!

Who were they and what has become of them? Their names are Lieut. Lester J. Maitland and Lieut. Albert F. Hegenberger. They are still flyers.

Delicate Business

It was five years ago this June that they jumped aboard their big plane and soared away from Oakland, Cal., bound for Hawaii over the same route on which the gallant Capt. Rodgers faced death. Since they aimed at that little cluster of islands out in the broad Pacific, they must navigate perfectly. A mistake in two degrees in calculations would let them hurtle by, on to an almost certain watery grave.

If they missed the islands, the next landing place would be 2500 miles farther, at the Solomon Islands. But they had fuel enough to carry them only the 2400 miles to Hawaii, so they could not fail. They were expert pilots. Maitland, enlisting in the army air corps during the World War, took to flying naturally. Hegenberger had had almost as much experience. And both had been in planes practically every day for years.

24 Hours Pass

Their plane soared on, maintaining a speed of approximately 100 miles an hour despite wind, occasional banks of fog and treacherous currents of air that buffeted it. They checked their instruments constantly, allowed for drift. As the hours passed and they went by the 20 hour mark, they peered anxiously ahead, trying to discover those little black specks on the blue horizon that they knew they must reach.

As they passed the 24-hour mark the suspense was nerve-wracking. It was almost unbearable. And then they saw a faint outline of something. It became plainer and they breathed sighs of relief. They landed at Wheeler Field, Honolulu, in 25 hours and 50 minutes. They had navigated perfectly and piloted perfectly. They had hit the bulls-eye!

In the days that have passed since they were applauded so lustily for that feat, they have been in and out of the limelight.

Maitland Auto Victim

Maitland wrote a book about the flight. Then he returned to Kelly field in Texas, and became a reliable pilot who could train other flyers and do test piloting for the army. He specialized in speed flying. Eventually he was decorated by President Coolidge. In 1930 he was injured seriously in an automobile accident. The same day his wife was awarded a divorce on a charge of mental cruelty. Maitland is completely recovered from the accident now and he continues flying. It is the life he loves.

The air paths that Hegenberger has followed have taken him along many of the same routes. He flies at Kelly field, but primarily he is a test pilot. He has broadcast from a plane successfully. In 1929 he flew a plane operated by a mechanical pilot. Only last summer he was in a plane at Schenectady that was steered by a compass, controlled by an electric motor. His great skill was proved last July when he set a plane down in a meadow near Mattituck, L. I., in a thick fog that might have been disastrous for one less expert.

Maitland and Hegenberger, blazers of the air trail to Hawaii—they started young as flyers, and both bid fair to fly for many years to come.

If you hear a zip and a zoom overhead at terrific speed one of these days, the chance is it's a flyer who once made a prize-winning flight to Hawaii. Remember him? Read "Air Paths of Glory" in tomorrow's Evening Telegraph.

THIEF ANSWERS PHONE

Boston—Joseph Shapiro wanted to talk to his friend, Joseph B. Logan so he called him on the telephone. "Hello, Joe," he said, "this is Joe." Came the reply, "No this isn't Joe. This is a burglar cleaning out his apartment, and I wish you wouldn't call again. I'm sick and tired of answering telephones for that guy." Shapiro hung up hurriedly and notified the police. They found Logan's apartment had been thoroughly ransacked.

GEORGE SCHULER HEADS DRIVE IN PASADENA, CALIF.

The Former Dixon Boy Is Written Up Extensively By Post

The Pasadena, Calif. Post of May 14, contained the following concerning George L. (Chubbie) Schuler, vice president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of that city, a former Dixon boy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Schuler of this city:

For every $50,000 in cash stored away from circulation, 1000 families of Pasadena and other parts of the United States are deprived of a livelihood.

This fact was unearthed by the Pasadena Junior Chamber of Commerce after exhaustive research, and a campaign against hoarding will soon be launched in this city with the expectation that the movement will spread to all other cities of this country through the medium of Junior Chamber activity.

George L. Schuler, vice president of the Pasadena organization, has personally outlined a feasible plan to combat hoarding which is more disastrous to the nation than the tax burden, in the belief of the younger Pasadena business leaders.

Traces Dollar's Course
Mr. Schuler has written a short statement tracing the course of a dollar and finds that it is worth no more than the paper it is stamped on unless the government backing it up is stable. To prevent the props of the government from being shattered and American money made worthless, Mr. Schuler briefly suggests a safe plan of releasing hoarded money.

Present plans call for the printing of 35,000 copies of the plan and to distribute them to every home in Pasadena through the courtesy of the Municipal Light Department. The statements will be included in light bill envelopes at the regular mailing time.

Contacts 110 Cities

Efforts of the Junior Chamber will not end in the Pasadena territory but will extend to other cities. Mr. Schuler is now engaged in presenting the idea to 110 other Junior Chambers of Commerce in the United States.

Here is the statement prepared by Mr. Schuler, and which has been endorsed by a group of outstanding Pasadena business men and financial leaders:

"The greatest reason for the continued life of the depression is lack of confidence, which leads to lack of money in circulation, and not necessarily high taxes and a multitude of lesser bones of contention which so many of us are fighting for and against with no real enlightenment as far as the depression is concerned."

"What is money? It is the medium of exchange issued by the United States or any other government to simplify the exchange of goods, produce, service, etc. During good times a few years ago there were between 28 and 35 in cash per person in circulation in the United States. Now there is a very small proportion of those amounts, and yet the government tells us there should be over $50 per person in circulation. Where is the money? Hoarding—that is the answer. Hoarding in this case means funds withheld from circulation."

"Every dollar in cash hoarded means $10 in actual business or credit. If a person hoards $50,000 by placing it in a safety deposit box he robs about 1000 people of a job and their proportionate amount of cash—imagine this—1000 families are deprived of a livelihood because one person does not realize what he is doing—1000 families that he must help to support eventually with no income from his $50,000."

Depend Upon Charity

"One thousand families dependent on charity, friends, relatives and the public at large. This man does not realize that the money he is hoarding is only as good as the government. In other words, supposing the United States government should go into bankruptcy. He could then take a car load of his $10 bills to the grocery and if they were hoarded properly, get a loaf of bread or something of equal value. This exact case was true after the Civil War—you have all read about it."

"Here is the solution to bring about good times. If you have money to invest, but are afraid to trust anyone with it, put it in the postal savings or government certificates—they are just as good as the money itself. A quicker way to help of course is to deposit in some financial institution. You may be quite sure that those that have weathered the storm so far will be in business for a good long time. The postal savings and government certificates earn from 2 to 3 per cent per year. (Your deposit will strengthen the government.)"

"The government in turn deposits and loans this money to the banks and other financial institutions on their frozen and long term notes for a fraction of 1 per cent more. The banks in turn are able and willing to loan to merchants, manufacturers, etc. They in turn replenish their stock. This in turn starts the wheels of industry and in turn clears up the unemployment situation and brings back good times for all of us."

"It is true that taxes must be reduced in proportion to other reductions. This should be accomplished by shorter working days, rather than by throwing a great number of people out of employment to depend on the already overtaxed institutions that take care of these cases."

"Let's be sensible about this financial tie-up—it isn't the end of the world—let's not get worried and panic stricken—it's a condition we have brought about ourselves—we can all help—let's go."

Daily Health Talk

WEATHER AND HEALTH

Observations of folk lore and by the man in the street are not infrequently very astute, but the deductions drawn therefrom are far-fetched. Thus, for example, bad spells have been associated with illness, and pleasant odors with good health.

The observation is fundamentally correct, but the deduction that good health might be maintained by carrying flowers or perfume is illogical and dangerous.

Recently Dr. C. G. Simpson, director of the British meteorological office, discussed the prevalent ideas concerning the effects of weather on health.

He pointed out that the only important influence which weather has on the body is its extraction of heat.

When the quantity of heat extracted is reasonably, he stated the sensation is one of stimulation. It is in this manner that he accounted for the prevalent belief on the unhealthfulness of the air in rooms with closed windows, of fog, of night air and similar atmospheric conditions.

The human body does not countenance complacently feeling very hot or cold, and there is associated with these extremes a distinct psychologic condition of irritation, which is translated into an appealing logic of unhealthiness.

Actually, however, the body can tolerate without any ill effect astonishing changes in temperature. Fogs, if they are clean, merely represent an atmosphere saturated with water, uncomfortable to a degree but not injurious.

Dirty fogs are unhealthy because the air is polluted with dust, smoke, and vapors with gases.

Atmospheric electricity, according to Dr. Simpson, has no effect upon man, though at times the body may have an electric potential of as many as 100,000 volts.

This is accounted for by the fact that the body is surrounded by an almost perfect non-conductor of electricity, the air.

Brooklyn, Mass.—If it hadn't been for a fire, the families of Maurice Tompkins and Allen Holbrook might have been scandalized. The youths were arrested driving their car through city streets clad only in their underclothing. They explained that fire had broke out and destroyed their camp and they had to drive home minus their outer clothing, which was lost in the fire.
